Restaurant business booming

Many avoid meat counters

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Spaghetti, macaroni, chicken and seafood topped the Sunday dinner menus for thousands of Americans on the opening day of a week-long meat boycott protesting high prices.

Most meat markets were closed on Sunday, so it was hard to judge whether housewives were crossing beef, lamb and pork off their shopping lists.

President Nixon announced last Thursday night that a ceiling on the price of all beef, pork, and lamb was to go into effect today. But leaders of consumer groups said the boycott would be held anyway because the ceiling would not be effective.

Although some New York restaurants reported patrons asking for more meatless dishes than usual, a spot check of restaurants in the Chicago area showed most restaurants doing a booming business.

"Right now we've got a waiting line of 20 minutes, and I've seen a lot of steaks going by," said Frieda Marianos, service manager at a Chicago restaurant where the best steak costs $7.50.

A random sampling of Detroit area supermarkets showed customers in large numbers were avoiding meat counters.

"We've been selling chicken, that's all," said Cheri Killingsworth, a meat clerk at a Detroit food store. An assistant manager at another chain store agreed that it was "really bad."

Joining the ranks of meat boycotters in Michigan was the Rainbow People's party, formerly known as the White Panther party. A party spokesman explained, "Meat prices are criminal, and we're in favor of all political action like this." Dolly Cole, wife of the president of General Motors, said her family wasn't boycotting meat. She added, "But I really don't think we have steak more than once every two weeks or so."

Mrs. Cole said she cut up a leftover rump roast to make hash for Sunday dinner. She said, "We like hash."

In Waterville, Maine, Pat Gorman served her family of nine a macaroni loaf made with cheese, macaroni, tuna fish, evaporated milk, onions, eggs and pimientos. Mrs. Gorman, who helped organize the Maine boycott, said, "My husband likes spicier foods, but the kids loved it."

She said that she has received about 200 telephone calls from women throughout the state who wanted to organize a meatless protest in their areas. A housewife passing out meatless recipes at a Columbia, Mo., food store Saturday was upstaged by a group of 16 cattlemen who bought the store out of meat and then gave it away to surprised customers.

"We wanted people to see what it would be like to go into a store and not be able to buy meat because it wasn't there," said Jim Marshall, a spokesman for the cattlemen.

Mrs. Marilyn Johnson, the housewife, said shoppers were taking her recipes for salmon souffle, chopstick tuna, rosy cheese fondue and other meatless dishes until the ranchers started handing out free meat. "I kept telling the customers that free meat is nice, but that it won't be free next week."

'We can subpoena witnesses'

Nixon offer on aides ruled out by Ervin

By LAWRENCE L. KNUITSON
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., today rejected as unacceptable President Nixon's offer to produce White House aides for informal testimony in secret sessions of the special committee investigating the Watergate bugging case.

Ervin, the committee's chairman, said the Senate is fully empowered by law to subpoena any witness it wishes on its own terms and to mete out punishment for refusing to appear as a witness.

"I am not willing to elevate a White House aide above the great masses of the American people," Ervin told a news conference.

Ervin also rejected the White House claim that presidential counsel John W. Dean III is exempted from appearing because of his lawyer-client relationship with the President and White House aides.

Dean, Ervin said, was appointed by Nixon to find out whether any of those aides were guilty of misconduct in the events surrounding the bugging of Democratic National Committee Headquarters in Washington's Watergate office complex last June.

"Now he claims he was acting as their attorney," Ervin said, and accused Dean of "conflict of interest."

He said it is "absurd" to hold that the Senate is impotent to deal with the White House in the Watergate case and recommended Nixon take a "refresher course" in the laws of evidence at Duke University, his alma mater.

Sunday a Republican member of the special Senate investigating committee said two GOP senators were among targets of spies working for President Nixon's re-election last year.

That and other statements alleging political espionage by the committee for the Re-election of the President were made Sunday by Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., and denounced by a spokesman for the Nixon committee as "absolutely, categorically, undeniably" false.

Weicker said also he believes White House Chief of Staff H.R. Haldeman was so closely involved with the Committee for the Re-election of the President that he "had to know what was going on" in the way of political espionage.

He said Republican campaign aides were "almost competitive as to who could do the dirtiest deed." Weicker said he had been told by Alfred C. Baldwin that office activities of Sens. Charles Percy, R-Ill., and Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., and Rep. Charles McCloskey, R-Calif., were among those marked for surveillance.

Weicker said Baldwin told him he had been ordered by convicted Watergate burglar James W. McCord to stake out those offices and several others on Capitol Hill.

Baldwin, he said, had been told to watch the comings and goings from the offices of Sens. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.; Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine; William Proxmire, D-Wis.; Mike Gravel, D-Alaska; and Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y.

POW believes many airmen were killed

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — A survivor of North Vietnamese captivity says he believes more than 100 U.S. airmen were killed by angry militiamen and civilians after their planes were shot down.

"Well over 100 men were seen on the ground alive but never reached the prison system," Air Force Col. James H. Kasler said in an interview.

"We know that in the bombed areas an awful lot of men were killed by the militia. The North Vietnamese civilians were pretty irate."

Kasler, 46, of Indianapolis, Ind., credited regular North Vietnamese troops with rescuing some U.S. troops from lynching.

His estimate of the number of American fliers slain in this way was the first made publicly by any returned POW. He said his information came from downed air crewmen he met during the 6½ years he was held in the North.

In addition, Kasler said that 12 to 15 POWs who were taken into interrogation "never reappeared."

"I don't think they had any intention of killing us," Kasler said of the North Vietnamese interrogators. "But they were so crude in their torture. And they were like mad dogs, they lost their heads."

Kasler said he believes three seriously ill men died of willful neglect.

He identified them as Air Force Maj. Earl G. Cobiell, Navy Cmdr. Kenneth R. Cameron, and Navy Lt. Cmdr. James J. Connell. Their names have appeared on a list of 55 American military men reported by the Hanoi government as having died in captivity.

Kasler told of what he called a "big escape purge" staged by the North Vietnamese in May 1969 after two U.S. fliers broke out of a compound and were recaptured.

"Between 40 and 45 officers got the treatment torture beatings," Kasler said. "The North Vietnamese tried to find out whether there was an escape committee. There was an escape committee, but so few people knew anything about it that the Vietnamese never were able to learn who was on it."

Treatment of U.S. war prisoners had improved after the United States stopped bombing North Vietnam in late 1968, Kasler said, but the escape attempt "gave them an excuse" to resume the abuses. The purge lasted about a month.

Kasler said a survey made by camp leaders among 351 POWs in 1971 showed that 95 percent of them had been tortured and forced to live in solitary confinement for at least six months.

Major drive is under way in Cambodia

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Government troops are reported fighting their first major offensive operation in 15 months, but other units closer to the capital have fled under communist pressure.

Field reports said communist forces drove the government soldiers from Prasat Nsang Khmau, 33 miles south of Phnom Penh. The reports said 50 government soldiers were killed and 80 wounded in the battle Saturday before they reached the town of Chambak, four miles away.

Another government garrison about 15 miles southeast of Chambak was hit by about 1,100 rounds of mortar fire Saturday, and those troops also rushed to Chambak, according to the reports.

As they fled, the reports said, the government soldiers were pursued by two American armored personnel carriers captured by the communists. The evacuating troops left behind five 105mm howitzers, six mortars and eight trucks loaded with ammunition.

The new offensive by the Cambodian government is against Khmer Rouge guerrillas holding Mt. Kirrom, 60 miles southwest of Phnom Penh. The campaign has not been announced by the military command, but the army newspaper The Resistance said in its Sunday edition the operation got under way March 25.

This report said the government force had captured several positions at the foot of the mountain, but the communist rebels remained well entrenched on the mountain's summit.

It was the first time the Cambodian army has gone on the offensive since December, 1971.

Malaria delaying POW's trip home

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
In the Philippines, the last known American prisoner of war was suffering from a slight case of malaria today that may delay his return home to home soil by a day.

In California, a recently freed POW, Air Force Lt. Col. Louis H. Bernasconi, gathered his mother and 14-year-old daughter into his arms and wept for joy Sunday as the crowd cheered thunderously and sang "God Bless America."

In Massachusetts, freed POW Air Force Maj. Fernando Alexander told a welcoming crowd: "We traveled almost halfway around the world today. Thank God it was all the way home."

In Texas, ex-POW Capt. William A. Spencer arriving home said: "It's nice to be in the land of the Stars and Stripes and Playboy magazine and those kinds of things."

Army Capt. Robert T. White, the last American to be released by the communists, was limping when he arrived Sunday at Clark Air Base in the Philippines for processing. He was liberated by the Viet Cong in the Mekong Delta, where his case of malaria today that may delay his return home to home soil by a day.

When Nixon meets Thieu

Continued aid will be pledged

By FRANK CORMIER
SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon is expected to assure South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu of continued American aid when the two meet today at the Western White House.

Although U.S. officials often have briefed newsmen prior to such conferences, White House sources were reluctant to discuss topics for the meetings before Thieu's arrival.

However, observers expect discussion of Nixon's repeated warnings that communist violations of the cease-fire agreement could produce American military reprisals.

After arriving in a chartered Air Vietnam jetliner at Los Angeles International Airport on Sunday, Thieu's only comment to newsmen was: "I came to say thanks to the American people."

A communique is to be issued after the last of their four meetings on Tuesday, and few observers expect it to contain any substantive surprises. They think it will have pledges of solidarity, promises of U.S. aid to South Vietnam, vows of adherence to the cease-fire agreement and a statement that North Vietnam and the Viet Cong are expected to do the same.

Nixon conferred several times Sunday with his foreign policy adviser, Henry A. Kissinger. Also here for the talks were Secretary of State William P. Rogers; Ellsworth Bunker, outgoing ambassador to Saigon; and Graham Martin, Bunker's replacement.

Two presidential sessions were scheduled for today—a morning session and a black tie working dinner this evening at the Nixon home. Rogers also was to host a luncheon for Thieu at the nearby Camp Pendleton Marine Base.

Nixon and Thieu will get together Tuesday morning and conclude their meetings at a working lunch at La Casa Pacifica.

It is understood Thieu would have preferred a presidential welcome in Washington. The Marine band was flown here from the capital to help give him a red carpet military reception.

Thieu had wanted a meeting with Nixon much earlier, but the White House put him off, in part to gain leverage in winning his approval of the cease-fire. The two presidents had not met since Nixon stopped briefly in Saigon during his first year in office.

Protests of Thieu's visit began Saturday night with hundreds of mostly young demonstrators marching in support of the Viet Cong and aid to Hanoi when Nixon attended a dinner saluting film director John Ford in Los Angeles.

More protesters were on hand when Thieu's plane landed,

Strong voter turnout predicted for Tuesday

Women's lib, gambling, school issues key Wisconsin election

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Women's lib, gambling and school-house politics measure their might Tuesday in Wisconsin's spring general election.

The state elections supervisor, Leo Fahey, has predicted more than 800,000 of the state's 2.84 million eligible voters will ballot, compared with 407,000 who showed up for the primary election March 6.

Fahey said he expects city hall, school board and county elections may attract as much voter enthusiasm as state ballot items will.

There are two statewide elections and two statewide referendum issues.

Polls begin opening about 6 a.m., depending on local option. All close at 8 p.m.

Dr. Barbara Thompson of Madison, an administrative consultant in the Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction, and former state legislator Ernest J. Korpela of Washburn are competing for a four-year term as superintendent in charge of the department.

Justice Bruce F. Belluss is looking for another 10-year term on the State Supreme Court. His ballot opponent is Robert J. Beaudry, a West Allis attorney.

Voters are being asked in a referendum whether the state Constitution should be amended to allow churches and clubs to conduct bingo games, a proposal that has died repeatedly in the legislature since the 1930s because of fears of underworld control of lotteries.

In an accompanying referendum question, voters also are asked whether to amend the state Constitution with an equal-rights amendment, a proposition supported by women's rights organizations.

Mrs. Thompson, a veteran of 28 years in teaching and school administrative work, has campaigned against what she calls efforts by teachers unions to take control of the department and local school boards.

She has been particularly critical of teachers' strikes, saying the department should offer its services to resolve strike-causing conflicts between teachers and school boards.

Korpela whose campaign has received financial and political backing from the state's largest teacher union, says the superintendent should exercise more influence over school bills in the legislature.

He has denied Mrs. Thompson's arguments that his association with the teacher union would prevent him from being unbiased in matters between schools and their employees.

In the Supreme Court contest, Beaudry, a former Milwaukee County political chairman, has stressed probate reform and creation of a state citizen-lawyer panel to review grievances against lawyers, replacing the lawyer-dominated State Board of Bar Commissioners.

Belluss said he too favors probate reform, and believes in no-fault auto insurance to offset the citizen's dependence on lawyers to settle estates and accident actions.

But the justice said these are matters to be enacted by legislators. Beaudry said the court ought to step in, particularly to regulate lawyers' fees.

Korpela, 36, was a school superintendent for six years until he served in the Assembly as a Democrat.

He has insisted the endorsement he received from the 48,000-member Wisconsin Education Association's political office plays no major role in the superintendent election.

Mrs. Thompson, 48, a member of the WEA, said the hazards of disruptive union strikes and the potential political punch of teacher unions could erode the relationships between teachers and administrators. She has predicted that, in the election showdown, WEA members will support her because of what she calls her background of educational professionalism and her platform of tax-saving administrative cost-cutting.

The union itself, meanwhile, has not denied its political approach to the campaign.

Its officers have said teacher involvement in politics is overdue. The WEA has used member dues to help pay off $75,000 in campaign contributions to candidates, including $25,000 for Korpela, and has provided staff personnel to work in his campaign.

Bingo supporters have ranged from veteran's clubs to church groups, saying legalization of the game would provide them with a charitable source of revenue.

Bingo's critics, citing the proposal as an invitation to the Mafia's money hunters, include Democratic Gov. Patrick J. Lucey and Republican Atty. Gen. Robert W. Warren.

Many church leaders have said they cannot feel comfortable about bingo. The Wisconsin Council of Churches and the Wisconsin Catholic Conference are among groups which refused in recent weeks to endorse legalization of the game.

The equal rights amendment, although little more than a Wisconsin version of a proposed U.S. Constitution amendment, has stirred as much debate as bingo has.

The voices of the women's liberation movement have had to deny that enactment of the amendment would cancel alimony, destroy the structure of the family unit, deprive girls of legal protection against rape, convert campus dormitories to coeducational facilities, desegregate public rest rooms and enroll women in the National Guard.

They contend the amendment simply would iron out some legal jargon which has interfered with enactment of privileges already guaranteed in civil rights legislation.

Opponents of the amendment insist it is nothing more than a women's privilege amendment, and that any action needed for correcting legal discrepancies on the basis of sex should be enacted by direct legislative action.

Among the local election issues is a Milwaukee County referendum question as to whether the city's Museum of Natural History, rated the world's fourth largest natural history museum, should be transferred to county ownership in an effort to smooth out fiscal operations of the growing facility.

Among other referenda, Appleton voters will be ruling on $3.5 million in bonding for a Fox River bridge, Cornell is deciding whether to sell its electrical utility, and several communities have school bond referenda.

Racine County is deciding whether it wants a chief executive administrator.

More than two dozen municipalities, most of them towns, are deciding whether they want liquor sold.

Mass transit figures in referenda concerning municipal operation of bus systems. Municipalities voting on bus issues include Green Bay, Eau Claire, Superior, Sheboygan and Oshkosh.

There are county court elections of judges in Winnebago, Rusk, Outagamie, Milwaukee, Dane, Dodge, La Crosse, Dunn and Kenosha counties.

There are elections for the 1st Circuit Court in Kenosha County, the 10th Circuit of Langlade, Outagamie, Shawano and Menominee counties, the 25th Circuit of Waushara, Sauk, Marquette and Columbia counties, and the Circuit Court in Milwaukee.

Mayor William Dyke of Madison is seeking re-election against Alderman Paul Soglin, a young politician whose political career began in the 1960s as a spokesman for the campus element.

Dyke's name has been tossed in the hopper with that of Warren and former defense secretary Melvin R. Laird as a possible Republican nominee for governor in 1974.

There are 16 other mayoral elections in Antigo, Chippewa Falls, Columbus, Crandon, Green Bay, Kiel, La Crosse, Manitowish, Marinette, Mellen, Milton, Osseo, Racine, Sheboygan, Sun Prairie and Wausau.

POW returns home, fights back tears

SURING, Wis. (AP) — Close to tears in front of an estimated 1,000 people, Capt. Jerry Gerndt returned to his northeastern Wisconsin home Saturday after 5½ years in a North Vietnamese prison.

The crowd turned out in the Oconto County hamlet of about 500 to see their neighbor for the first time in seven years.

Signs sprouted in the flag-draped town, saying: "You're in God's Country Now," "Welcome Jerry," and "Thanksgiving Day is March 31st, 1973."

Dancing on the flagpole in front of his parents' farm home was a banner reading: "It's about time you show up. We love you anyway."

"I'm going to start crying here in a couple of seconds," the bachelor captain told the crowd at a brief welcoming ceremony.

"You're beautiful, all of you," he said. "When I look out that sea of faces it makes me know that everything we went through was worthwhile."

He said he was very glad to be home and thanked everyone for showing up.

At his home, he started meeting new members of his family, including a niece he had never seen and the wives brought into the family by two brothers while he was in prison.

Several hundred people greeted him in Green Bay when he arrived at the airport. An estimated 50 cars joined the motorcade to Suring.

"My faith in God, my faith in my country and in my fellow man have kept me going, and this reception certainly proves it," said the 30-year-old Air Force officer, captured Aug. 23, 1967, when the F-4 Phantom jet he was piloting was shot down over Hanoi.

Gerndt, on a 72-hour pass and due back at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, Ohio, Tuesday for further debriefings and examination, smiled freely and said he was in good health. However, he was reluctant to talk about conditions during his captivity.

"Today is a happy day," he said. "I'll talk about that later. Right now I don't want to think about it."

Cheryl Cundy, 17, De Pere, met him at Green Bay and presented him the POW bracelet with his name engraved which she had been wearing for three months. He thanked her and attached it to his own wrist.

"I'm just glad he's home safe and sound," the teen-ager said. The homecoming had special meaning to Gerndt's 88-year-old grandfather.

"His only goal in life had been to see his grandson come home," said the officer's father, Ellsworth.

Madison POW tells of torture tactics

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Stopwatch torture tactics often used by the North Vietnamese until late 1969 had American prisoners in much worse shape than the relatively healthy men now being released, according to a former POW from Madison.

"Treatment was pretty grim until the fall of 1969," said Air Force Maj. Donald L. Heiliger, who spent more than five years and nine months in four different POW complexes in and around Hanoi.

Heiliger, 36, said his captors frequently used torture—enough to temporarily disable a POW but usually not enough to permanently maim. Interrogators often used stopwatches to time the ordeals, he said.

Heiliger, 36, said that when he refused to divulge anything but his name, rank and serial number immediately after his capture, light U-shaped irons were placed around his ankles. The irons were joined by an eight to 10 foot steel bar, which he said caused extreme pressure and pain.

He said other torture tactics involved wrist screw cuffs to halt circulation and strapping a man's elbows behind his back. The straps were tightened until the elbows nearly touched, Heiliger said.

Heiliger was punished in 1969 for replying flippantly to an interrogator, who asked him if he thought Averill Harriman was too old to be involved in the Paris peace talks.

Heiliger said he believed Harriman to be about the same age as Ho Chi Minh. The interrogator, he said, then forced him to kneel with hands extended for two days in his cell, causing loss of circulation in his hands and arms.

Heiliger said a prisoner would be gagged if he screamed during torture. Once, he said, he thought "they were going to choke me to death."

County personnel policy reiterated

The Winona County Board of Commissioners this morning reiterated its personnel hiring policy that all county job openings must be advertised.

County court judges S. A. Sawyer and Dennis A. Challen had notified the board in a letter dated March 9 that they had hired a secretary for the court services office to replace Mrs. Larry A. Mikkelsen, who had resigned.

County Board

THE LETTER immediately raised the hackles of board members, recalling last month's dispute with County Assessor Dave Sauer over hiring a man for his department without advertising. Sauer was ordered by the board to advertise for the position even though the man already "hired" had given notice on his prior job.

Judge Sawyer was summoned to the commissioners room and readily admitted that he had not advertised. "The word was around," he said and several interviews were held before selecting the woman who is presently working in the job.

Commissioner Edward "Nip" Malewicki asked if any of the board members had heard about the job opening. The answer was negative.

Sawyer agreed that "what is good for one department should be good for any department." He said, however, that he was in a position where he had to keep the county work going and that the woman he had hired was highly capable.

Commissioner Len Merchle-witz asked the judge what he thought Sauer would think if an exception to the policy were made.

"He certainly wouldn't like it," Sawyer replied.

"WE STOOD by the book on the Sauer issue, let's stick by the book on this one," Malewicki commented.

"I agree," Sawyer said, "we should follow the same policy."

It was agreed that an advertisement would be placed but that the presently-employed woman would be given 30 days work if she is not the best applicant.

A minor disagreement ensued when it was discovered that the county personnel handbook states only that "public notice" shall be given on county job openings and it does not state specifically that newspaper advertisements shall be used. The board stood by its decision, however, that all county job openings must be advertised in the newspaper.

Two juveniles arrested after high-speed chase

CHATTFIELD, Minn. — Following a chase by Fillmore and Mower county authorities, two juveniles — ages 16 and 15 — were apprehended Sunday for questioning on the theft of a pickup truck.

Sig Anderson, Chatfield, reported that his pickup truck was stolen between 11 and 11:30 p.m. Saturday while it was parked outside his home.

About 4:30 a.m. Sunday a Spring Valley police officer noticed two young boys riding in the pickup and attempted to stop them. The youths reportedly took off at a high rate of speed. The officer chased them to Ostrander and then back into Spring Valley. When a Mower County deputy joined the chase, his car was rammed by the pickup. The pickup then struck a parked car, traveled across a driveway, narrowly missing a house, and coming to rest.

Both boys allegedly jumped out of the pickup and ran. One of them was caught by an officer. The other was picked up Sunday in a Chatfield home.

Fillmore County Sheriff Carl Fann said that one of the youths is wanted by Fillmore County for prior offenses and also is an escapee from Olmsted County authorities.

McCauley joins sponsorship of HECC grant

State Rep. M. J. McCauley, R-Winona, has cosponsored a bill appropriating $750,000 to the Higher Education Coordinating Commission for grants to post-secondary schools for program development.

The bill would support "innovative efforts to enhance the quality, effectiveness and/or efficiency of post-secondary education in Minnesota."

Chief sponsor is Rep. Joan Growe, DFL - Minnetonka.

In the Senate, Lewiston DFLer Roger A. Laufenburger's Transportation Committee Friday tabled a bill which would allow studded snow tires in Minnesota.

An 8-5 vote keeps the bill in committee and the bill could be revived by a simple majority of its members. Chairman Laufenburger opposes re-authorization of studded tires in the state, and opposition also comes from the Minnesota Highway Department.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Ralph Doty, DFL - Duluth, would have allowed studded tires throughout the state for a $5 annual fee.

Rep. Neil Haugerud, DFL-Preston, entered the most detailed financial report from the Winona area when filings were made under House requirements. He listed stock in Graphic Controls Corp. and Headway Industries, Inc. He's president of Headway.

The report rule calls for listing of stock holdings valued at $1,000 or more and any directorships of offices in corporations. Senate reports are not due until next month.

New York man pleads guilty to theft charge

James W. Dash, 22, Wells-ville, N.Y., pleaded guilty in Winona County Court this morning to a charge of theft.

He was arrested by the Winona County sheriff's department at 5 p.m. Saturday for allegedly taking $5 from a pin-ball machine at the Pickwick Tavern, Pickwick, Minn.

Judge Dennis Challen sentenced Dash to serve 10 days in the Winona County jail and gave him credit for the time spent in jail since his Saturday arrest.

Judge Challen also referred Dash to the department of court services for assistance in finding employment here and granted him time away from jail while he's looking for a job.

Two injured in city accident

Two persons were treated at Community Memorial Hospital for apparently minor injuries suffered in a two-car accident at Highway 61 and Orrin Street at 8:37 p.m. Sunday.

Involved in the accident were a 1970 model two-door driven by Harold Olson, Ulica, Minn., and a four-door sedan driven by Danvil DeLano, 419 Lafayette St.

WINONA police said Olson was driving north on Orrin Street and DeLano east on Highway 61 when the two vehicles collided.

Two passengers in the Delano car, Mrs. DeLano and their son John, 9, suffered bruises and abrasions.

Damage to the Olson car was estimated at $1,000 and to the DeLano car, $400.

Damaged in an accident at 9:31 p.m. Saturday at West Broadway and Huff Street were a 1962 model sedan driven by Steven Overing, Stockton, Minn., and a 1965 model sedan driven by Randy Jumbek, 320 E. Sanborn St.

Both vehicles reportedly were traveling east on Broadway when Overing attempted to make a right turn from the inside lane.

DAMAGE to the Jumbek car was estimated at $75 and to the Overing car, $100.

At 12:50 p.m. Sunday a 1973 model two-door hardtop driven by Richard Lorbiecki, 163 1/2 Laird St., and a 1962 model two-door hardtop driven by Harry McCarthy, 1725 Edgewood Rd., were involved in a collision at East Wabasha and Vine streets.

Lorbiecki was driving south on Vine Street and McCarthy east on Wabasha Street when the two vehicles collided.

Damage to the Lorbiecki car was estimated at $600 and to the McCarthy car, $500.

Bids received for road work near St. Charles

Improvements to Highway 74 in Fillmore, Olmsted and Winona counties have been bid out by the Minnesota Highway Department among 28 projects in 21 counties.

W. Hildman & Sons, Inc., Fairmont, Minn., made apparent low bids of $186,762 for bituminous resurfacing and turn lanes along 12 miles of Highway 74 between Chatfield and Interstate 90 south of St. Charles and $201,733 for the same work on 9.5 miles between Highway 13 in St. Charles to Elba.

Work is to begin June 4 and be completed within 25 working days.

VOSE TO SPEAK

St. Mary's College ecologist Rory Vose will speak to the regular meeting of the Winona Rod and Gun Club Tuesday night.

Beginning at 7:30 in Winona's Holzinger Lodge, members and guests will hear Vose discuss "Prairie Island, How can we preserve it?"

Service pins were awarded to: Donald Olis and Vernon L. Jacobson, 20 years; Curtis E. Bratager and Jon W. Owens, 15 years; and John N. Solberg, 10 years.

J.C. PENNEY Co., 1858 Service Dr., called police headquarters at 5:30 p.m. Friday to report that a juvenile shoplifter had been apprehended.

Held for police was a 17-year-old boy who had taken a $6.98 Western denim jacket.

The youth has been referred to youth services.

Mrs. Lewis Albert, 3778 6th St., Goodview, Delta Builders, reported that a bunk bed had been taken from a house at 450 E. 3rd St., sometime during the past two weeks.

The bed was valued at $60.

Mankato, Minn., license plate and the Speltz bicycle a Winona license plate 4535.

Dick Hanson, 524 W. Sarnia St., reported vandalism and the theft of articles from his home sometime Friday night.

Hanson said that a tool kit, wrenches, drills, gauges and various small tools were stolen and a 10-speed Schwinn bicycle had been damaged.

He estimated his total loss at $200.

Alfred Speltz, 1615 W. 5th St., said a $70 girl's three-speed bicycle was taken from his residence sometime Saturday night.

Speltz said the bicycle had been chained and the chain had been broken.

Richard Pallaza, 419 W. Broadway, said a $70 man's bicycle had been taken from the garage at the rear of his house sometime during the past week.

Stockton area man second to file for school board

James N. Enga, 34, Stockton Valley, today became the second candidate for the soon to be vacated 5th District seat on the Winona Independent District 861 School Board when he filed his intentions with School Board Business manager Paul W. Sanders.

Enga joins Mrs. Paul Kronebusch, 46, rural Rollingstone, Minn., in the race for the seat to be vacated by Dr. L. L. Korda, Winona. The 1st and 5th District directorships will be decided in the May 15 election. The 5th district includes nearly all of District 861 outside of the city of Winona.

FILINGS will be accepted at the business manager's office in the east building of Winona Junior High School from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, with the deadline for filing set at 5 p.m. April 24.

Enga, a resident of Hillsdale Township who lives between Minnesota City and Stockton, has lived in the area for five years, since moving from Windom, Minn.

He taught a soil conservation class at the Winona Area Vocational-Technical Institute for four years and is currently a conservation contractor constructing various soil and water management structures for area residents.

A high school graduate, he attended the University of Minnesota, Yale University, St. Mary's College of San Antonio, Tex., and Winona State College.

Enga lists six reasons for seeking the position on the school board, with the goal of reestablishing local control over children's education heading the list.

"MOST PEOPLE don't have anything to say in what their children do in school; too many board members aren't representing the people of their districts," he explained. "I would like to, I'm a good listener."

The quality of education also comes high on Enga's list, and he is concerned with improving the quality.

"The basics are often neglected," he says, "many kids graduate from high school without any real practical knowledge; they are lacking in many areas."

"I'd like to see more practical, common sense applications of our education process," he adds, "Our consumer education is really lacking."

One of his aims is shared by many and needs no explanation — to try and halt the spiraling costs of education.

"I think schools could operate all year around," he said, "That would eliminate the expense of maintaining a building sitting virtually empty for three months and make better use of the facilities we have without expanding."

He doesn't favor children in school 12 months a year, but would rotate the vacation schedule so that some were out of school during the spring and early summer and others during late summer and fall.

"I'd like to see schools stress more exploratory vocational and technical career areas in the lower grades," he said. "Exposing younger children to the many career possibilities and giving them more time and a better perspective when it comes to choosing a career."

Another of his goals, he said, would be to keep the smaller schools in the district open and to insure that students in the outlying areas don't get "short-changed."

"BY SHORT-CHANGED, I mean that the schools in Winona and Goodview have many special programs that don't trickle down to the outlying schools. I'd like to see a balance, where every child had a chance to take part in these special programs."

An idea for keeping the outlying schools operating included the possibility of, when city schools become crowded, taking children to the outlying schools.

Break-in, vandalism at Kellogg probed

KELLOGG, Minn. — The Wabasha County Sheriff's office is investigating a break-in and vandalism at the Kellogg Feed Store which occurred either early this morning or late Sunday night.

Entry was gained by prying a bar off of double doors leading to the elevator office.

Extensive damage was done inside the office. Vandalism dumped various types of grass seeds around area and then sprinkled a gallon of disinfectant over the seeds.

Taken were about $25 worth of gloves, $10 change from a pop machine and a case of pop.

The owner, John Danckwart, reported the break-in.

annexation of less than 15 acres of Winona Township land petitioned by Winona Warehouse Corp. Accompanying the annexation was to be rezoning of the land from R-2 residential to B-1 business.

The council meets at 7:30 p.m. at city hall.

Scattered snow interrupts spring

There was snow in the Winona area's highlands this morning, as March's balmy weather gave way to the more seasonable cold and wet April has brought with it.

After a Sunday high of 50, local temperatures dipped to 34 this morning following a weekend rainfall officially totaling 0.67 inch.

Snow was reported steady on the bluff ridge above the city, where a half-inch had fallen this morning.

The Mississippi measured 9.4 feet and well below the city's 13-foot flood stage. The level was expected to continue to recede this week.

The National Weather Service forecast for the area gave Winona cloudy skies through tonight with some scattered, very light rain or snow this afternoon, with partial clearing Tuesday.

A low tonight was expected in the low 30s and a high Tuesday in the upper 40s. The chance of precipitation was put at 5 percent tonight and Tuesday. Extended statewide forecasts included fair to partly cloudy with seasonable temperatures Wednesday through Friday with highs in the 40s and lows in the 20s.

Winona's temperature had reached 39 at noon today.

WSHS speakers top competition

Winona Senior High School students won 11 of the 30 placements for Region I speech competition at the District III High School Speech Festival at Winona State College Saturday.

Winona students also were awarded three alternate spots.

Dover-Eyota High School, with six placements to the regional and three alternate positions, and Red Wing High School, with six placements and one alternate, were the other principal winners.

WINNING students will compete in the Region I Speech Festival April 14 at Northfield, Minn.

THE FESTIVAL was held at the Performing Arts Center and was hosted for the 20th consecutive year, by the department of speech and theatre arts at WSC.

Judges for the events were: Dr. John Breitlow and Dr. Richard Welland, College of Saint Teresa; Mrs. Thomas Frisby and Mrs. Mader, Mollrain, Cotter High School; Professors Walter Ayotte, Michael Flanagan, Mona McMahon and Brother Raymond Long, St. Mary's College; James Holten, Winona County Court Services; and Dr. Bruce Wilkinson, Winona State College. Festival manager was Jacquie Reidelberger, WSC.

The names of 42 persons at the party — mostly juveniles and minors — were recorded by Houston County authorities. Sheriff Jerry Olson said he would be conferring with Houston County Attorney William Von Arx to determine if additional charges should be filed.

The majority of the youths attending the party were from Iowa, said Sheriff Olson. Quantities of marijuana, wine and beer were confiscated.

Ace Telephone may change structure

HOUSTON, Minn. — The Ace Telephone Association may have to consider a change in corporate structure, Robert W. Bunke, executive vice president and general manager, told stockholders attending the 3rd annual stockholders meeting here Saturday.

Bunke cited increasing difficulties of a telephone cooperative in competing for capital and skilled employees required for modern telephone service.

He said the Ace Telephone system, which serves 12,000 telephones in 19 exchanges in southeastern Minnesota and northeastern Iowa, should aim at least for the 50,000 telephone level to continue to be competitive and survive.

SINCE ITS founding in 1950, Ace Telephone Association has placed more than $7 million in to its plant.

Bunke emphasized that changes in capital structure would foster the company's growth and make possible the continued survival of the association. In 1950 there were 5,900 independent telephone companies in the nation, and the number has declined today to about 1,800.

Bunke, also executive vice president of Central Communications Corporation with executive offices at Rushford, alluded to the possibility of combining the two firms, which are corporately separate, but emphasized with such an affiliation, Ace Telephone's identity would continue. The company's capital consists of $6.3 million, 83 percent debt and 17 percent equity.

IN 1972, Ace Telephone revenues exceeded $1.1 million despite a heavy new plant investment of $1.8 million for the year. Net earnings were about $22,000 after taxes. Total plant investment exceeds $7 million.

Reelected to three-year terms on the board of directors were Herbert Freeman, Ostrander, Minn.; Giles Broadwater, Grand, Minn.; and State Rep. John C. Mendenhall, New Albin, Iowa.

Service pins were awarded to: Donald Olis and Vernon L. Jacobson, 20 years; Curtis E. Bratager and Jon W. Owens, 15 years; and John N. Solberg, 10 years.

Business index report corrected

Two figures were transposed in the Winona business index report in the Sunday News.

January 1973 air mail volume was 106,712 pounds, not 1,480 as reported. The 1,480 figure is the amount of air freight handled here in January.

In addition, there were 6,390 water meters in the city in January 1972, not 7,390 as reported.

Police check reports of theft, vandalism

A number of reports of vandalism and theft were being investigated by Winona police today.

Assistant Chief John Scherer said this morning that Briggs Transfer Co., 1100 E. Wabasha St., reported that one of its semi-trailers had been entered sometime Sunday night.

THE REPORT was made by Otis Saela. Entry apparently was gained by cutting or prying a padlock from a door of the trailer.

An inventory of contents was being made this morning and the amount of loss, if any, was not known immediately.

Albert Plattner, 111 1/2 W. 3rd St., reported the burglary of his apartment while he was away during the weekend.

Police said that Plattner reported that when he returned home he found the hall door open.

He said a knife valued at $12 and a $2 flashlight were taken. Investigation revealed that entry apparently was gained through a bedroom window from an adjacent flat roof.

Earl Sobek, 1203 W. Mark St., reported that at 8:56 p.m. Saturday someone threw a rock through the front window of his residence.

The rock shattered the glass of the storm window and also broke the inner window.

SOBECK, WHO was at home at the time of the incident, estimated his loss at $10.

Thefts of two more bicycles also have been reported to police.

Alfred Speltz, 1615 W. 5th St., said a $70 girl's three-speed bicycle was taken from his residence sometime Saturday night.

Speltz said the bicycle had been chained and the chain had been broken.

Richard Pallaza, 419 W. Broadway, said a $70 man's bicycle had been taken from the garage at the rear of his house sometime during the past week.

Mankato, Minn., license plate and the Speltz bicycle a Winona license plate 4535.

Dick Hanson, 524 W. Sarnia St., reported vandalism and the theft of articles from his home sometime Friday night.

Hanson said that a tool kit, wrenches, drills, gauges and various small tools were stolen and a 10-speed Schwinn bicycle had been damaged.

He estimated his total loss at $200.

J.C. PENNEY Co., 1858 Service Dr., called police headquarters at 5:30 p.m. Friday to report that a juvenile shoplifter had been apprehended.

Held for police was a 17-year-old boy who had taken a $6.98 Western denim jacket.

The youth has been referred to youth services.

Mrs. Lewis Albert, 3778 6th St., Goodview, Delta Builders, reported that a bunk bed had been taken from a house at 450 E. 3rd St., sometime during the past two weeks.

The bed was valued at $60.

City council meet includes public hearings

Supply bid openings and public hearings on sewer, water and alley surfacing in the Skyline Subdivision and on surfacing and curb and gutter construction on Pelzer Street were on tonight's Winona City Council agenda.

Councilmen were to decide on bids for traffic paint, sand and pea rock, crushed limestone and a new automobile for the engineering department as well as hear pros and cons on $116,545 construction on Pelzer and $76,990 in E. C. Hamilton Addition at Skyline.

Both hearings are expected to be followed by council approval on city costs and assessments. Curb and gutter would be installed on Pelzer from Highway 61 to West 5th Street, and resurfacing would extend from the highway to Prairie Island Road.

Ordinances were to be introduced creating a Building Code of Appeals, reestablishing parking meters on the east side of Main between West 2nd and 3rd streets and amending the Downtown Loop to allow "U" turns at some downtown intersections.

Perrin Love, 488 Kerry Court, Robert Clayton, 714 1/2 W. Wabasha St., and Jerome A. Colletti, 170 Harriet St., were expected to be appointed to the city's Human Rights Commission by resolution.

They would replace the Rev. Daniel Dernek, State Rep. M. J. McCauley and G. H. Hugenvik.

Frank J. Allen Jr., 203 E. Broadway, has been appointed to the Winona Athletic Board to replace L. H. Santelman. No confirmation is required by the council.

City Engineer Robert J. Bollant was to present plans and specifications on 1973 sewer and water construction and proposals for West Broadway to Junction from Orrin Street to Junction Street.

Final approval was due on

Find bodies of two in pit of tanning solution

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The bodies of a vice president of the Midwest Tanning Co. and an employee were found at the bottom of a pit of tanning solution Saturday.
 The victims were identified as Edward Urban, 58, of South Milwaukee and the employee, Billy E. Jones of Milwaukee.
 Police said Jones went into the pit area to repair a machine that cleaned a filter.
 The bodies were found by a supervisor, Eugene Marcus, who noticed the pit had more liquid than normal and tried to clear the drain with a rake, police said. The rake caught one of the bodies.

Minnesota, California and North Carolina are the leading U.S. producers of turkeys.

Brandt, militant showdown is seen

BONN (AP) — Chancellor Willy Brandt is challenging a faction of militant young socialists to quit the Social Democratic party, and a showdown may come at the party convention next week.
 With relations between the United States and West Germany a major issue, Brandt continues to take a tough line against the young radicals a fortnight after threatening to resign if the convention opening April 10 in Hannover adopts resolutions put forward by the militants.
 In an interview released by his party Sunday, Brandt told the magazine Der Spiegel "whoever follows the program of the Communists should go."
 Last week 30 members of the ultra-leftist Stamokap group quit the Frankfurt branch of the Social Democrats, charging that the party's youth wing, the Young Socialists, were not pushing hard enough for the eventual "dictatorship of the proletariat."
 Stamokap is an acronym for "State Monopollist Capitalism," and 21 of the defectors announced they would join the Communist party.
 The Young Socialists are themselves far enough left to worry Brandt and his associates in the party leadership. It was their adoption of an anti-American, Marxist-leaning platform at a congress last month that caused Brandt to threaten to resign as party chairman if any such resolutions were pushed through the Hannover convention.
 The Young Socialists and other left-wing Socialists are critical of Brandt's efforts to transform the former workers' party into a moderate party with appeal to a broader range of voters.
 The Young Socialist platform adopted last month also called on the government to stop its payments to the United States, to reduce the cost of the 200,000 American troops in West Germany. Brandt and his associates fear this may strengthen the moves on both sides of the Atlantic for withdrawal of American troops from Europe.

Caledonia names Boys State delegates

CALEDONIA, Minn. (Special) — Roger Holland and Mike McCarthy have been chosen by the boys of the Caledonia High School junior class to represent the school at Boys State this summer.
 Roger is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Meiners, and Mike is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McCarthy. All are of Caledonia.
 Alternate candidate is James Dibley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Dibley.
 The two candidates will attend Boys State under the sponsorship of the American Legion Post 101 of Caledonia.

NEW QUARTERS . . . Mondovi (Wis.) Cooperative Equity has occupied this new $75,000 building on Highway 10, east of Mondovi. A veterinary clinic is housed in the west side of the 80-by-120-foot steel structure. (Mary Penham photos)

Mondovi Co-op Equity opens $75,000 building

MONDOVI, Wis. (Special) — The opening of the new Mondovi Cooperative Equity building on Highway 10, east of Mondovi, has added a $75,000 asset to the business life of this Buffalo County community.

The 80-by-120-foot steel structure has 8600 square feet of floor space.

CARPETED throughout, it has secretarial offices, a conference room and more than 2,200 square feet of display area. General Manager Robert Konkel and members of his staff have separate offices.

A 5,500-square-foot warehouse and a 1,000-square-foot veterinary clinic are housed in the new building.

A glass front with brick facing is one of the features of the new insulated structural steel building. Parking area for customers will be blacktopped later.

Organized in 1910, the first board of directors included: J. J. Myers, N. A. Peeso, Louis Thalacker, Louis Machmeier, Frank Deetz, Arnold Moser, Andrew Robinson and R. B. Jackson. First year, business amounted to $3,500. In May of 1972, receipts amounted to $735,000.

New items added to the Co-op's inventory include a complete plumbing and electrical center, interior and exterior paint selection center, a new hydraulic hoist cylinder center as well as a complete line of seeds, chemical, oils and hardware.

WHAT WILL the effect of the recent gasoline and oil shortage have on the estimated Co-op sales?

"Most of our growth has been in chemicals and fertilizers," Konkel explained. "We anticipate having a sufficient supply of both oil and gas this year."

Twenty-nine people are employed by the co-operative. Leland Christiansen, Eleva Rt. 1, heads the present board of directors. Other officers include: Edmund Hagen, vice-president; LaVern Wright, secretary; Arnold Heck, Ralph Segerstrom, Allan Moy and Miland Weiss, directors.

General contractor for the project was Durand Builders; electrical, Van's Electric and Hurlburt's Company of Durand took care of the heating and plumbing.

Mondovi Co-op Equity reports rising sales

MONDOVI, Wis. (Special) — Total sales of $1,717,603 were reported at the Mondovi Co-op Equity Association during 1972.

The report was given at the annual meeting held at Mondovi High School March 24.

Sales showed an increase of $182,000 over 1971, with net savings at $119,352, a $48,654 increase over the $70,698 realized in 1971.

The association paid $223,000 in salaries during 1972, and $16,850 in property taxes to the city. Stockholders approved an amendment to the bylaws changing the fiscal year to begin Dec. 31, 1972 and end Aug. 31, 1973.

Robert Konkel, manager, reported that of the 2,417 patrons, 76 percent purchased less than $500 in merchandise, while 124 or 5 percent of the members contributed to more than 60 percent of the growth of the co-operative.

Elected to the board for three-year terms were La Verna Wright and Edmund Hagen. Miland Weiss was elected to a two-year term to fill the unexpired term of Louis Pospishil, who resigned.

At the reorganizational meeting of the board, Leland Christiansen, Eleva, was named president; Hagen, Nelson Rt. 1, vice president; and Wright, Mondovi Rt. 2, secretary-treasurer. Holdover directors are Ralph Segerstrom, Arnold Heck and Allan Moy, rural Mondovi.

Boycott displeases farmers

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Farm spokesmen expressed outrage Sunday that the grocery shopper would undertake a meat boycott rather than begrudge the grower a little slice of inflation.

"Why shouldn't food prices go up like everything else?" Mrs. Gordon Zietlow said. "A consumer will pay $1.50 for a cocktail these days and not even bat an eye."

Mrs. Zietlow, of Iowa, joined National Farmers Organization members at a meeting which the NFO had requested with the Wisconsin Consumers League.

The league is an affiliate of the Consumer Federation of America, and had said its 1,000 Wisconsin members plan to lobby in support of a nationwide consumer boycott against supermarket prices.

The Wisconsin facet of the antiprice demonstration got underway Sunday in the rain with 25 persons picketing a suburban West Allis supermarket.

Pickets urged shoppers to sign pledges against buying meat. The demonstration was sponsored by the Concerned Consumers League, which circulated petitions to complain to President Nixon about policies which allow "prices to rise faster than at any time in the past 20 years."

Sponsors said they want 14,000 signatures by the end of the week-long boycott.

Protesters' antiprice placards included one addressed to Nixon and demanding "meat with honor."

Supermarkets said there was no immediate indication of a boycott-caused reduction of trade.

But a meat cutter said it wasn't a satisfactory gauge because "Sundays aren't big days for buying meat anyway."

Wisconsin's NFO members voted last week to reply to a price-subsidy boycott by withholding livestock from market, hopefully creating a meat shortage and forcing prices to rise again.

But NFO members agreed to take no action unless the NFO orders a nationwide withholding action.

In the meantime, the NFO appealed to shoppers to be understanding about the economic pressures which force prices upward.

NFO spokesmen censured suggestions by the Nixon administration that prices can be forced back to 1972 levels.

"If prices were rolled back, there would be a mass migration from the farm" as growers are driven out of business, Steven Pavich, Wisconsin NFO president, said.

"A farmer cannot continue to survive without getting equal-table income to meet production costs and living expenses," he said.

He accused television media of having "pushed the meat boycott for three weeks."

Rita Collins, consumer league president, said too many housewives are forced to spend "most of their income on food."

"Meat prices have reached a point where they are hurting," she said, citing hamburger at $1.19 a pound and rib eye steak at $3.19 a pound.

Supermarket prices passing stock market

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — There is hardly a shopper today who isn't aware that food prices are rising on a curve that seems to have been borrowed from a bullish, rampaging stock market.

In the past five years those supermarket prices have risen at an annual average rate of 4.3 percent, made up of 3.6 percent in 1968, 5.1 in 1969, 5.6 in 1970, 3.0 in 1971 and 4.3 percent in 1972.

So far this year the rate of increase has been better than 25 percent, which if maintained will mean the costliest year for foodbuyers since the days immediately following World War II.

Even in 1951, when the Korean War upset the market, the rise in food prices totaled only 11.1 percent for the year. And there was another vast difference: the increase was a one-year phenomenon.

In 1950, the rate of increase in food prices was 1.4 percent, a figure that most housewives might notice but not complain about. And in 1952 the increase was 1.8 percent.

By contrast, the current problem is now in its sixth year — and intensifying.

Meanwhile, the stock market has been going nowhere. Destroying the notion that stocks are a hedge against rising living costs, the Dow Jones industrial average is right where it was seven years ago.

True, many stocks have risen in that time, some by tremendous percentages, but these have been the exceptions. Brokers, however, have not lost their faith, as is illustrated by this promotional comment from Merrill Lynch:

"Is there a way to fight inflation? Yes. Many Americans move beyond investments that promise to return a fixed number of dollars. Instead, they look for investments that bring back not an equal number of dollars, but buying power itself."

"How is this done? By actually buying something instead of lending money in banks or bonds. Many investors fight inflation by purchasing common stocks."

Merrill Lynch illustrates its comments with a chart showing that the rise in stock prices has been far sharper than the rise in consumer prices since 1945. The chart is correct, but the thesis can be disputed.

For much of the time that stocks were rising prices were not. During the sustained period of stock price increases during the early 1960s the consumer price index was, relatively speaking, barely moving.

But, when prices began their ascent in the latter half of the 1960s the rate of stock price increases began moderating. And in terms of constant dollars, many of the bluest of the blue chips began slipping.

Three meat plants to be closed down

DAKOTA CITY, Neb. (AP) — Iowa Beef Processors plants in Luverne, Minn., and Mason City and Fort Dodge, Iowa, will be shut down today because of market problems.

No decision has been reached on whether the shutdowns today will continue Tuesday, according to IBP spokesman Dennis Gaukel.

He said 450 persons are employed at the three plants, and said the "temporary curtailment" of operations will affect about 440 workers — 110 at Luverne, 250 at Fort Dodge, and 80 at Mason City.

IBP President J. Fred Haigler said Saturday at the firm's Dakota City headquarters that the shutdown was made in an effort to bring live cattle prices in line with current wholesale prices.

He said the shutdown was caused by the combination of President Nixon's announcement of a ceiling on red meat prices and the consumer boycott.

"Because live cattle prices are not in proportion with current wholesale prices, IBP will make some production adjustments," he said.

Gaukel said IBP has 5,200 employees in eight slaughter plants, two processing plants and two "hide" operations in Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska and Kansas.

Beef high on foreign markets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sirloin steak out of sight these days? It's rough all over, according to U.S. emissaries who checked supermarket prices in Bonn, London, Tokyo, Rome and other foreign capitals.

Beef roasts sold for $2.08 per pound in the West German capital in mid-March, about the same as in Washington.

Today called test day in meat boycott

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — A leader of the Minnesota drive to boycott meat says today is the "big test day" in the effort to drive prices down by refusing to buy meat.

Dorothy VanHorn, a suburban homemaker who is co-chairman of the state branch of Fight Inflation Together, said it was difficult to gauge the success of Sunday's opening of the boycott.

"Sunday is not such a big shopping day for groceries," she said. "The big test day is today."

Mrs. VanHorn said the consensus of national FIT leaders was to go ahead with the boycott despite President Nixon's order for a ceiling on prices of beef, pork and lamb.

"We're just asking for a fair market price of meat, or answers to our questions about why it has gone up so drastically," she said.

Mrs. VanHorn served fish for Sunday dinner—"caught fish, not bought fish"—and said she plans to serve cheese dishes and tuna during the week.

The boycott runs through Saturday.

Once very rich, Lytton estate finally empty

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Financier Bart Lytton once had an empire with assets of $750 million, and his personal wealth at one time was estimated at $15 million.

Lytton died in 1969, but his estate wasn't closed until Friday. The final accounting: insolvent.

Lytton's widow, Beth, reported to Superior Court Judge Earl F. Riley that his only remaining wealth was his half-interest in the couple's community property, which totals $307,434.38 and includes a $201,000 house now being rented.

Mrs. Lytton said she had paid all her deceased husband's bills but had no money left to pay his heirs or their daughter, Mrs. Timothea Stewart, whom he owed $522,823.50.

Lytton, who lost control of his Lytton Savings & Loan Association and Lytton Financial Corp. in April 1968, died of a coronary condition his doctor said began when his financial empire began to fall apart.

And if misery truly loves company Japan's finest—Kobe beef—was selling to a limited clientele in Tokyo for $17.40 per pound.

The foreign meat prices were reported today by the Agriculture Department in its weekly publication, "Foreign Agriculture." Officials said spot checks were made of prices in 11 cities by U.S. agricultural attaches.

T-bone steak was reported at 85 cents per pound in Brasilia and veal cutlets at 67 cents. In Washington, the report said, sirloin was $1.69 and veal $2.29.

Parisian shoppers saw top round of beef at $2.57 per pound and veal escalope at $3.20, the report said. In Stockholm, porterhouse steak was $3.81 per pound and veal cutlets $2.82.

Sirloin in London stores was $1.88 per pound, with rump steak going for $2.25 to disgruntled housewives where rising food prices have fed labor-union strife.

Bacon, currently about $1.19 per pound here, was bringing 96 cents in Brussels. Pork loin in Washington was $1.29 and in Tokyo it was $2.25.

Brazil had the lowest price for lamb chops, 58 cents per pound, compared with $2.19 here, $2 in Rome, $2.49 in Brussels, and $1.98 in Stockholm.

Poultry as an alternative? Broiler chicken, at 65 cents a pound in Washington, was priced at $1.67 in Tokyo; 48 cents in The Hague; $1 in Stockholm; 63 to 71 cents in Rome; 64 cents in Ottawa, where Canadians also paid $1.68 for sirloin steak, $1.32 for pork loin, and 99 cents for imported leg of lamb; and 62 cents in Bonn.

Israeli warplanes fly over Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli warplanes penetrated Lebanese airspace twice this week in violation of the 1949 armistice agreement between the two countries, a weekly Defense Ministry statement reported Saturday.

The statement said the planes flew at high altitudes over six villages and towns in south Lebanon but there were no bombings.

Urban renewal is not dead in Winona

The urban renewal land researchers have written off massive retail development, but that's only their opinion. The ultimate decision is with a developer and the Housing & Redevelopment Authority.

Don't you write off those two blocks — for any use.

The rumors about developments are abroad, and they are not entirely unfounded. The best one is that the Morgan Block — the focal point of this first phase — has been sold. It hasn't. This is a baseless rumor.

But plans have been made and meetings held on plans. Proposals include a combination retail-housing-ice arena development as well as modifications on the approach toward one major store and several satellite stores attendant with housing to keep up a high traffic volume and 24-hour use of the central business district.

That was also the concept of the Plaza Development Corp., which aborted last September when the corporation was unable to present a viable financing plan.

Plans for other developments have also included an artist's rendering. One of the developers, it is rumored, has enough private money to build a project without federal funding beyond land acquisition.

But the authority and staff are now proceeding cautiously. A 13-step procedure has been evolved, and no developer in or outside Winona has made it past the third step — staff evaluation — because no one has been able to complete the prequalification selection form or supply a preliminary sketch and plan outline that the staff will take seriously.

The 13 steps eliminate amateurs. It is significant, in view of the 1971-72 experience with Plaza, that evidence of adequate financing is part of Step 9.

The 13th step is: "Transfer of real estate title and start of construction."

That step appears to be beyond today's horizon, but persistent rumors and fragmentary reports suggest to the optimist that urban renewal in downtown Winona may yet come into view. — A.B.

Dirty movies and bingo night

To prepare Wisconsin voters for the referendum Tuesday on legalizing bingo by nonprofit organizations, a Milwaukee newspaper has been reporting on how charitable bingo operates in other states.

In Minnesota, the reporter visited St. Paul and Minneapolis, and, without too much difficulty, found examples of where operators have been able to use charitable organizations to line their own pockets in green.

We are convinced:

1. That these violations of the Minnesota bingo law are true, and
2. That they're not typical, either of bingo games in the Twin Cities or smaller communities.

Bingo cannot be successfully defended as an innocent pastime; it has its victims — for some the few dollars spent at bingo night are reckless dollars. Neither can bingo be listed in the cultural calendar.

Still it is a matter of relative values. The same edition of the Milwaukee newspaper exposing the evils of bingo in Minnesota includes advertisements for such X-rated films as "Sex and the Stars" and "Party Girls," whose redeeming social values we have not yet been apprised of.

Why is it that saving the little people from the evils of bingo is such a lofty mission and the right to commercialize filth an untouchable constitutional principle? — A.B.

INFLATION FUEL — Consumer demands well in excess of supplies, along with the money to exercise those demands, are the basis for most inflationary trends. But there is a school of thought that says some inflationary periods are caused by the simple administrative acts of those who set prices in excess of what the demand calls for and those who negotiate wages higher than necessary to meet the cost of supplies. The Cost of Living Council says that there are indications that meat packers have been raising their prices faster than their costs have been going up. The government must be on guard against these situations. If they can't be halted, they can at least be publicly sorted out from the basic supply and demand statistics. This might have more effect on controlling inflation than any proposal for mandatory price or wage controls. — Milwaukee Sentinel

Nixon and conservatives

James Reston

WASHINGTON — President Nixon is in personal trouble over the Watergate case, not because there is any evidence that he knew about the conspiracy, but because he has not handled it in accordance with the candor and fair moral principles he insists he represents.

When he talks, Nixon is a moralizer, the faithful son of Quaker parents and Quaker ideals, whose duty it is to summon the people back to their ethical and religious ideals. But when he acts, he is a tough, cunning and even ruthless operator, and he is in trouble over the Watergate case precisely because his actions do not correspond to his proclaimed ideals.

He says he is for an "open administration," open minds and open doors, but he will not allow his White House staff to be questioned by the Congress on their relations — not with the President, which is fair enough — but with the men convicted of bugging and burglarizing the Democrats at the Watergate.

THIS IS no longer an argument between the White House and the reporters who exposed the links between the Watergate and the President's re-election committee, or even between the Republicans and the Democrats. Nixon is in trouble now with the conservative spies, who were hired to break into the Watergate and are now talking about who hired them, and he is also in trouble with conservative Republican senators, like James Buckley of New York, and even the Republican leader in the Senate, Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, who are insisting that all the facts in this conspiracy should finally be published.

Accordingly, Nixon is in effect being asked by conservative members of his own party, not to hide behind "executive privilege" or other legal arguments, but to get the facts out in the open and face the consequences, as he did in his last major political and moral crisis of the Checkers speech in the presidential campaign of 1952.

At that time, Nixon was charged with having a secret political campaign fund of $18,000 which seems almost innocent these days, but Nixon felt obliged then to go on television and explain the facts, and the difference between things that are "illegal" and things that are "wrong."

"THE USUAL thing to do when charges are made against you," he said then, "is to either ignore them or to deny them without giving details. I believe we've had enough of that in the United States . . .

"I feel that the people have got to have confidence in the integrity of the men who run for . . . office. It isn't a question of whether it (the $18,000 Nixon fund) was legal or illegal. That isn't enough. The question is, was it morally wrong?"

It may seem odd to look back on the Nixon Checkers speech as a symbol of political principle, but this question of what is legal and what is wrong is precisely the question before Nixon on the Watergate. Nixon the moralist is now acting as Nixon the lawyer.

He is now doing the "usual thing," which he condemned in 1952. He is either "ignoring" the charges in the Watergate or "denying them without giving details." He is not explaining anything personally, and also not allowing his staff to explain, and this raises another question.

For in the last four years, while Nixon has been arguing publicly for the decentralization of power, he has been centralizing power in a White House staff that has been loyal to the President but increasingly powerful and even arrogant toward the Cabinet and the Congress.

THE RESULT of all this is that the Congress, even the Republican members of the Congress, are no longer willing to ignore the Watergate scandal but feel obliged to expose the facts, even if the facts hurt the President and expose the tricks of his political associates.

Every once in a while, the dirty business of party politics goes against the national interest, and even party members revolt. And this is what is happening now. During the last presidential election campaign, Republicans running for office didn't want to hear about the Watergate, and denounced the press for writing about it. But now that the campaign is over and the facts are coming out in court, even the politicians are insisting on getting at the facts.

But not yet the President. He is still trying to "ignore" the facts or "deny them without giving details" — the technique he denounced more than 20 years ago — but the technique is not working.

The courts and the Congress are now talking to the burglars, who are spilling the beans. And at some point the President is going to have to speak out on the facts or be unfaithful to the principles of what he calls "the open Nixon administration."

Baker St. fumes

Russell Baker

Holmes and I were seated in our Baker Street rooms in a blue funk, he swabbing his dottle with cocaine whilst I watched Basil Rathbone and Nigel Bruce playing Holmes and myself on the telly.

Imagine my annoyance when, out of the fog at the top of the stairs, there came a sharp, impatient, but well-bred, rap at our door and Holmes said, "That will be a slightly desperate business executive from Detroit with a wallet containing six different European currencies. Let the gentleman in, Watson. I think he needs our help."

"HOLMES, you are wrong this time," I said, more out of pique than good judgment, for though I knew too well that he was always right, watching Rathbone-Holmes constantly making a fool out of Bruce-me on the telly had left me embittered over the years, and I longed to see Holmes humbled.

It was intentionally irritating, therefore, to open the door and find an expensively dressed man who said, "I am a slightly desperate business executive from Detroit."

"YOU SEE," said Holmes, "a few moments before his knock I had smelled an intensification of the automobile exhaust pollutants beneath my window. That meant a big car made in Detroit where they are unable, as you know, Watson, to meet government limits on pollution emissions. Who could bear the expense of driving one of these cars, with its monstrous gasoline consumption, in London where the price of gasoline gives pause even to millionaires? Only a man who did not have to pay for the gasoline himself, Watson. Someone who, by driving his own company's car on a business trip, could charge the entire cost off to the American taxpayers as a business expense. All this could only add up to a Detroit business executive."

"I MUST have your help, Mr. Holmes," said the American, staggering into our rooms and collapsing into a study in scarlet.

Aid to North Viets may be in trouble

William S. White

WASHINGTON — Strong though he is generally in Congress, Richard Nixon nevertheless stands to be the first President in some four decades to lose a cardinal foreign policy fight there.

The President's intention to give important economic assistance toward rebuilding the erstwhile communist enemy country of North Vietnam is in so much trouble, notably in the Senate, as to make its effective rejection all but certain. Predictably, it is assailed from the hawkish right wing. And why not, indeed.

Far worse for the President is the fact that the very senators who would normally be expected to support aid to Hanoi, having done precisely that during the Johnson administration, are now in full flight from any such notion. These are the doves who insisted so long upon a Vietnam withdrawal upon almost any terms and at almost any cost.

WHO, THEN, is left to back Mr. Nixon here? Not many. About the best that he can possibly expect in any realistic world is very little. He just might get an ultimate congressional sanction for some highly limited assistance to North Vietnam so hedged about with safeguards as to mean that no long-range, and thus major, reconstruction projects could ever be put in motion in any event. This would be nothing like what is envisaged by the White House; that is, a large work of rehabilitation which could only be done on an American aid commitment running over a scale of years.

President Nixon himself, of course, is not proposing any open-ended program for the communists. He is thinking of giving help only if and as they respect the promises they have given to him in the cease-fire. Even senators reluctantly willing to support him, however, are planning to demand a great deal more. Their price for an "aye" vote will be at minimum an enemy standstill in Laos and Cambodia as well as Vietnam and maybe even an actual communist withdrawal from those lands.

Even then these fellows will not go along with any kind of long-term reconstruction. In their logic they cannot, for they are going to want the kind of aid program that could be turned off almost between one week and another. Big reconstruction jobs simply could not fit into this framework of conditions.

HOW THE WIND is blowing, or rather not blowing, for the President in the dove quarter is illustrated by such senators as Hubert Humphrey and Frank Church. Unless everybody in the Senate wholly misunderstood them back in the '60s, they were both all-out for President Johnson's scheme for the economic rehabilitation of "both North and South Vietnam."

Here in 1973, however, both are quoted in the toughest of language as absolutely opposed to any such thing. This is not, of course, the first time that one man's meat has become the same man's poison among the doves. Their "flexibility" is well known and widely cheered among the new isolationists. Its importance here is simply that it so well illustrates the nature of the President's problem.

The very Senate politicians who only yesterday were in the van of the forgive-and-forgetters toward North Vietnam now vie with the old hardliners as to who can turn a stonier face to Hanoi.

Moreover, the whole aid scheme will derive no help whatever, to put the matter at its lowest, from the current exertions of Chairman J. William Fulbright of the Foreign Relations Committee to force the United States to cease giving bombing support to the wretched victims of communist aggression in Cambodia.

THE NORTH Vietnamese will get no help from Congress until they give evidence that they are through with aggression in Indochina. But they will never give up that aggression unless they are mightily encouraged to do so by the sort of American air intervention which the doves are determined to halt.

Mr. Nixon could at long last get out of South Vietnam. His chances of getting into North Vietnam with a helping hand are far from remote. United Features Syndicate

"WELCOME TO THE CLUB."

A fatal vacuum

Tom Wicker

NEW YORK — "Take your choice," declares the United States Chamber of Commerce in full-page newspaper ads. "Control spending or raise taxes." That, the ads continue, is how "President Nixon laid it on the line to Congress and the American people."

This is rather like saying "control your automobile or have a wreck." The question is not whether federal spending ought to be controlled; it is by what means and to what end spending ought to be controlled.

Nevertheless, the Chamber of Commerce formulation, echoing the Nixon administration's expert sloganeering — the President even specified a 15 percent tax increase, in his most recent veto — is one of those effective oversimplifications with which American politics abounds. There was, for instance, the legendary and perhaps apocryphal member of Congress who is said to have cried out to his colleagues during a debate on the tariff: "Are you for Japan or for America?"

THERE WAS Lyndon Johnson in 1964 asking with ominous emphasis: "Whose finger do you want on the button?" Albert Gore went down to defeat in Tennessee in 1970 not least because the complex question of prayer in the schools was cleverly presented to the voters as: "Are you for or against prayer?" And President Nixon himself campaigned in 1968 on the proposition that he could reduce crime merely by replacing the Attorney General.

The political appeal of these dubious simplicities should never be underestimated. The difficulties of combating them can hardly be overestimated, as was well illustrated by the Joint Economic Committee of the two houses of Congress. In their annual report, both the majority Democrats and the Republican minority agreed with Nixon's announced intention to "control" federal spending at a total of $268 billion in fiscal 1974, in order to avoid inflation or higher taxes or both.

But the Democrats went on lamely to say that "Congress should make major reallocations within the administration's proposed expenditure total." And there's the rub.

IT IS EASY enough to pose a spending ceiling — particularly one that will seem astronomical to most voters — as the only alternative to higher taxes, which no one wants. It is not so easy to answer, as the Democrats do, "yes," but even if we hold it to $268 billion, we can still reduce defense a little and increase health services, or we can cut foreign aid and put more into mass transit." And it is even harder to explain that, even if the $268 billion were to be exceeded, certain kinds of tax reform — not increases — might hold the deficit of expenditures over revenue to about the same level.

These complexities begin to be insurmountable if the further argument is attempted that, even though spending ought to be held to $268 billion, there may be dangers and consequences that outweigh those of a tax increase in the means by which the ceiling is enforced — in this instance, Nixon's ironhanded impoundment of appropriated funds he has single-handedly decided should not be spent.

The President's former Budget Director, Caspar Weinberger, now Secretary of HEW, argued in a New York Times article, for instance, that Nixon has not impounded as high a percentage of congressionally appropriated money as Presidents Kennedy and Johnson did. That is factually correct, but misleading on at least two counts.

THE LESSER is that the overall budget is so much larger nowadays that, even if a smaller percentage of it is impounded, this can be a larger amount of money than was impounded in the Kennedy-Johnson years. More important, Kennedy and Johnson with rare exceptions impounded for some temporary administrative purpose, usually spending the money or much of it later; Nixon is openly impounding for long-range political as well as economic purposes, to the point that he has effectively abolished some congressionally mandated programs.

Some of these are clearly boondoggles and overdue for termination. The questions remain whether it is good practice, and what the ultimate consequences will be, when Presidential fiat nullifies legislative enactment — even, in one case, when a presidential veto already had been overridden.

These are the complexities that are not allowed to surface in the Chamber of Commerce ads, or in most administration rhetoric and Weinberger made the administration's most convincing argument when he said of Congress's "antiquated and illogical" budgetary procedures:

"Nowhere among its 300-odd committees and subcommittees, each responsible for a small portion of the budget, is there one focal point where a goal or spending ceiling can be set and monitored to assure spending sanity."

Nixon has rushed to fill that congressional vacuum. And while it is specious to argue that a tax increase is the only alternative, that same vacuum does give Nixon's impoundment policy a certain practical validity.

CBS denies plans for X-rated films

Several weeks ago you published a letter from a pastor stating that CBS had announced its intention to show X-rated films and including the name and address where one might write to protest.

This information has been voiced in many places, and I'm sure the pastor wrote to you with the best of intentions and with good faith in the source of his information.

One of our church members received the following statement from CBS in answer to her letter of regret and protest that the network was adopting such a policy:

"The CBS Television Network has made no announcement that it plans to run X-rated movies. I cannot be too emphatic in stressing that CBS has no intention of broadcasting X-rated movies; nor has it ever had such intention. Let me, as briefly as possible, set forth the facts.

"I should point out that when it was determined that the CBS Television Network would replace Merv Griffin with motion pictures, arrangements were made to purchase 247 features. Of those, one, 'The Damned,' had originally been given an X-rating for theatrical showing. Before we would even consider it, we insisted that the distributors edit the film and have the X-rating removed by the Motion Picture Code Office. Both were done; it was edited and the rating was revised to an R. We—CBS—felt that even more editing was necessary and proceeded to take an additional 11 minutes out of the film, after which it was our conviction—and still is—that the motion picture would have come under the category of PG—Parental Guidance. I think you would agree that any television viewing at such a late hour would involve parental guidance.

"I'm sorry you've been misled, and I'll appreciate it if you'd be kind enough to enlighten those by whom you were misinformed."—THOMAS J. SWATFORD, vice president—program practices.

Restoring European environment costly

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—The chief executive officer of the Council of Europe predicted Saturday that restoring the European environment would result in a "heavy financial burden" to European taxpayers.

Dr. Lujko Tomic, secretary general of the council, told newsmen: "A lot of money was spent to spoil the environment, a lot of money will have to be spent to restore it."

The three-day Vienna conference on environmental protection was attended by cabinet ministers or senior government officials from 24 European countries.

Public support for Indians is growing

A majority of the American people sympathize more with the militant American Indians than with the federal government in the Indian take-over at Wounded Knee, South Dakota—by 51 to 21 percent. Ninety-three percent of the public has followed the episode.

Back of this public reaction to events at Wounded Knee is the 75-15 percent, lopsided conviction that American Indians have not been treated well in this country. A substantial 60 percent rate the way Indians have been dealt with by the United States as no better than "poor."

FIVE OF THE major claims of the militant Indians meet with considerable sympathy among a majority of the American people:

- The statement that "American Indians have been mistreated by the federal Bureau of Indian Affairs" is agreed with by 62-13 percent.

- That "the U.S. government has not lived up to the treaties signed with the Indians" is supported by 59-10 percent.

- The Indians' claim that they "have not been given a chance to determine their own future through self-government" is upheld by 59-17 percent.

- The statement that "unemployment among American Indians is the worst in the country" is accepted by 53-12 percent.

- That "American Indians have not had a chance to take complaints about their treatment to the government" is believed by a plurality of 45-30 percent.

THROUGHOUT A special in-depth survey of a national cross section of 1,472 households between March 15-23, it was evident that the American people are suffering from a deep sense of guilt over the way Indians have been treated by this country.

Running through public opinion is a sense of agreement that "Indians have been treated as second class citizens."

Many counterfeit bills found in Moorhead

MOORHEAD, Minn. (AP)—Authorities were investigating the passing of a large sum of counterfeit $20 bills in the Moorhead area during the weekend.

Police said nearly every business in the Holiday shopping center had received the bogus bills Saturday.

They said the money could be identified by its pale green color and the serial number H72224330 on all the bills.

Authorities declined to reveal how much of the money they had collected.

Most sympathetic to the Indian cause are persons in the East, those who live in the suburbs, young people under 30, the college educated, blacks, people with incomes of $15,000 and over, union members, independent voters, and Catholics. Support for the Indians cuts a wide swath through American society.

PEOPLE WERE highly articulate and vocal in their explanations of how they felt Indians had been treated. A businessman in Raleigh, N.C., put it this way, "We took away everything the Indians ever had, including their self-respect." A student at Wayne State University in Detroit said, "We left the Indians to rot on their reservations with no way to even support themselves." A store clerk in Waco, Tex., said, "The Indians were treated real bad. They were here before we were, but we took away their land, took away the buffalo, and have been terrible in the way we treated them."

To test the major demands of the militant Indians, the Harris Survey asked:

"Let me read you some of the claims of American Indian representatives. For each statement, tell me if you tend to agree with the claims of the Indians or disagree with them."

The Hanoi March: 'night of brutal spectacle' for POW's

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Jeremiah A. Denton Jr. was the first American prisoner of war off the first plane from Hanoi to land at Clark Air Base last month. In the following third installment of his thoughts and recollections on 7½ years of imprisonment, he recalls "a night of brutal spectacle.")

By Capt. Jeremiah A. Denton Jr., USN

As told to Kathryn Johnson
Associated Press Writer

I'd like to take you to the Hanoi March. A night of brutal spectacle, with the population having at us as we went through the streets and a night in which many men were tortured for confessions at the Hilton and the Zoh.

The North Vietnamese frustration and indignation against what our country was doing and what the POWs were doing, and not doing, reached a peak in the summer of 1966.

It was a year of terror tactics against the entire mass of POWs rather than against groups or individuals as later.

They were getting not only biographies but confessions from many men in their anger and I believe in an effort to intimidate American actions in the war by proffering us as hostages.

They began to threaten war crime trials. This pitch of indignation reached its highest form of expression during the Hanoi March.

Late in the afternoon of July 6, we heard many doors opening in the camp and a number of us were taken to several large rooms, blindfolded and handcuffed in pairs. Although many guards were watching us, we were able to communicate names by whispering to one another and by tapping on the adjacent man's knee or thigh.

My partner was Bob Peel, who is a very brave young man. It was the first time I was that close to an American, of course, and somehow I sensed the North Vietnamese were about to make some sort of spectacular display that would redound to their disadvantage.

They gave us a lecture in which they were vague about what we were going to do that evening but did let us know they were going to take a trip and strongly warned against communicating. One of the officers screamed at us that if we communicated on the trip, we'd be killed.

Just before dark, they loaded us up into trucks with perhaps 16 or more POWs per truck.

We were told we would be paraded through the streets so the people could demonstrate their anger to us. My over-all impression of their aim at this time is that they planned a spectacle which would humiliate us.

We were unloaded downtown and lined up in columns on a main street, about 10 yards between pairs. Right in front of me was one of several trucks loaded with news correspondents, big still cameras and big movie cameras.

Before we started moving and as the cameras began to roll, I tried my best to look as unrepentant as I could.

I unbuttoned to look carefree. I made an obscene gesture toward the crowd.

At that point one of the guards told Bob and me, "You will have to bow your heads." Suddenly I comprehended the whole idea. So I shouted an order up ahead:

"Nobody bows his head. Pass the word."

And I turned and shouted the same thing to the pair behind me.

I believe that I'm not the only one who gave that order but I gave it. I'm pretty sure the order was passed throughout.

The march began. The people were screaming. I think they were screaming something like,

"Kowtow, kowtow."

We did not bow our heads. We were protected by a cordon of guards wearing red scarves with arms linked together to hold back the crowd.

The army's part in this was to simply bend us through the street at bayonet point and afford the proper expression of subjugation and repentance.

As the march progressed, we began to tire and sweat profusely, having had no recent, comparable exercise. The crowd was standing about 15 deep on each side of the street and the heat from all the bodies was tremendous.

The big object of the parade was to bow our heads as we went through the streets.

As far as could see no heads bowed, but if any did I think it was from sheer fatigue and not intimidation.

The crowd became thicker and more intense. One woman — I'd judge her age at about 50 — threw a big rock at me from behind. We were frequently hit by guards and our faces, lips, jaws and foreheads were bleeding.

The next time a woman threw a rock, she successfully connected and knocked me off my feet.

They kept pulling us by the ears. I knew they were making asses of themselves.

The most irritating part of the march was a man about eight inches shorter than I, who would break through the cordon, sneak up and give me a left hook in the groin. I have a partial hernia today from that man.

I practiced throwing a one-two punch at him, counting one, two, three, coordinating my right with Bob's left (handcuffed to it) so I could deliver a left jab followed by a right.

As he followed along in the crowd, I got the escort officer's attention. I pointed to the man and demonstrated my intention and ability to deliver the one-two punch if he came out again.

The officer ran over to the man who was still trailing me, grabbed him by the shirt, shook him hard several times, shouted at him and I think he slapped him in the face. The man didn't give us any more trouble after that.

National Park System calls for end to expansion period

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a century of expansion, it may be time to begin "stabilizing" the National Park System, says its new director, Ronald Walker.

The Park Service may eventually acquire selected new areas to "round out" its holdings, Walker said, but at present he is putting more emphasis on improving parks already within the system.

The difficult task of creating and improving parks in and near large population centers of the east, where the National Park Service now has relatively little land, should be pursued mainly by state and local governments, Walker said.

He said the National Park Service would help with advice and counseling.

Walker outlined his views in his first interview since taking office two months ago.

A former presidential advance-man with no previous experience in park management, Walker said he was still learning about the park service and its problems.

Walker expressed admiration for the expertise gained by his predecessor, George L. Hartzog Jr., who has worked in the Interior Department for 26 years and headed the National Park Service for nine years before President Nixon assigned Walker to replace him.

He said he planned to continue and expand some of the programs started experimentally by Hartzog, to cope with increasingly heavy pressures on the parks from a growing population.

But Walker said it was time to "take a step back now and see where we're going."

He said the master plans prepared years ago for the existing national parks were all being reviewed to update them. Here are highlights of the interview with Walker:

Q—"The President's 1974 budget seeks a $50 million increase in national park funding. How will the money be used?"

A—"The budget is to help us in the new areas. It was not there before, to do anything with these new areas: the Gateway East (New York-New Jersey), Gateway West (San Francisco), Buffalo River, portions of Cumberland Gap and other areas.

"The rest of it is going for upgrading of facilities. They have had a great deal of difficulty in the past bringing these facilities up to the standard that could and should be there for the visiting public."

Q—"What kind of services need improvement?"

A—"The displays in the visitor centers, for example. Some of them are ten or 15 years old. Sure, they still tell the story, but in some cases nature has taken its course and some changes have resulted.

"Roads, trails, with the visitation that the National Park Service is experiencing. There's been a 99 per cent increase since 1964 in visitation and a 19 per cent increase in National Park Service personnel.

"Also, we have 298 areas, some of which I'd never heard of. I just feel it's incumbent upon us to let people know that, look, you may not have to drive all the way across the United States of America; you may have a tremendous experience within 100, 200, 300 miles where you have facilities where you could camp; and, hopefully alleviate what has been in the past tremendous traffic jams (in more famous parks)."

Q—"Have any decisions been made about restricting the number of visitors or cars in the parks?"

A—"No, we don't anticipate that, going into this season.

"Transportation (by private car) on the floor of Yosemite has been stopped for a couple of years and apparently it worked very well."

Q—"Have you decided what kind of commercial operations will be permitted inside the parks?"

A—"This is one of those bullets I'm going to have to bite somewhere down the road. The Secretary's advisory board has been conducting an in-depth study into the concessionaires as a whole—I'm going to wait for the commission report."

Q—"What plans do you have for bringing park facilities closer to the major population centers, especially in the east where land values are high and wilderness areas virtually unavailable?"

A—"The National Park Service has been moving so fast, the (existing) facilities are not up to the snuff that they should be.

Geneen to testify on Chile incident

WASHINGTON (AP) — ITT board chairman Harold S. Geneen testifies today before a Senate subcommittee trying to find out why the company attempted to channel $1 million through the U.S. government into Chile in 1970.

The Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on multinational corporations has received conflicting accounts about the purpose of the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. offer during the campaign of Chilean President Salvador Allende.

John A. McCone, former director of the Central Intelligence Agency and now an ITT director, testified March 21 that Geneen sent him to Washington in September 1970 to inform high government officials that ITT was ready to contribute up to $1 million "in support of any government plan for the purpose of bringing about a coalition of opposition to Allende."

But Edward J. Gerrity, ITT senior vice president, testified March 22 that Geneen told him the $1 million was intended as "seed money" if the government wanted to gather together a number of companies to finance low cost housing or a farming program for Chile.

William V. Broe, a CIA agent then in charge of Latin American clandestine operations, said Geneen told him in July 1970 he was willing to assemble a substantial political fund to support the presidential candidacy of Jorge E. Alessandri, one of Allende's opponents in the general election Sept. 4, 1970.

Jack Neal of ITT's Washington staff testified March 20 that he relayed an offer "up to seven figures" to Charles Meyer, assistant secretary of state for Inter-American affairs, and to Viron P. Vaky, assistant to presidential adviser Henry Kissinger at the White House. He said the offer was for any government plan, but that no details were discussed.

Meyer testified last Thursday that he remembered neither an amount nor a purpose being discussed in a phone call from Neal about that time.

What's another word for shoplifting? Stealing.

Shoplifting is no joke. It's a serious crime. No more getting off with just a slap on the wrist. Now, shoplifters are being arrested and convicted.

This means a criminal record. It could keep you out of college.

Kill your chances for a decent job. Cause you to get a thumbs-down when you need a loan.

And, even people who'd never dream of shoplifting are affected, too. Because shoplifters don't just steal from stores. Since shoplifters cause higher prices... shoplifters take everybody's money.

NO IF'S, ANDS OR BUTS, SHOPLIFTING IS STEALING.

Eye Clinic pampers those with limited vision

By VIVIAN BROWN

AP Newsfeatures Writer

Interiors that reflect environmental concern have been extended to nonresidential buildings by interior designers who are thinking of human ecology.

For Fran Rorer, 33, of Philadelphia, such a design won a first prize in the prestigious 15th annual S. M. Hexter Awards Program, conceived to commend interior designers for their contributions to the total environment.

Her award was for the design of the waiting area of the Scheie Eye Institute of Philadelphia. The outpatient area serves people with marginal vision.

Judges chose the Rorer design, remarked president Thomas Felber of the decorative fabrics, wall coverings and floor coverings firm, because "it was so extraordinarily compatible with the architecture and because the interior serves the function so well."

"Even before I received the assignment, I had been affected professionally by watching my diabetic grandmother become blind," observed Miss Rorer. "At each step of the way, I was aware of her concerns because she slowly went from blindness in one eye and partial blindness in the other to total blindness. I had observed how lights and shadows played such a great part in her efforts to navigate a room."

This first hand insight while she was engaged in the job helped her plan the handsome large waiting room with its splendorous architectural treatment and series of oak finished circular seating units, an extension of the oak-paneled walls. A blackish red-toned carpet runs from a brick entranceway to the benches where red upholstery also offers dimensional contrast.

"One concept was to use contrasts, light against dark, so people with limited vision would be aware where the rug stops and the seats begin. It becomes harder for almost-blind people to separate one thing from another," she remarked.

"Fears of people had to be considered in designing the room. A small child or elderly person might become frightened that medicine would be put in their eyes, so I attempted to reassure them with bright colors in the instrument area — for example, off-red boxes. Plants provide natural elements and the upholstered seating and other warm textures help provide familiar surroundings they might associate with their homes."

She tried to avoid harsh glare, noise and the plastic look that is often generated in such buildings.

"Most interior designers are using psychology in design, but it is a cop-out for them to say that an approach is used because it is aesthetically pleasing. That comment doesn't convey the real message. They should explain the rationales to make everyone more aware."

In her association with architects Vincent G. Kling and Partners, she gets an opportunity to do more than the average interior designer. She is often fortunate to be "right in with the architects on the ground floor," and they have come to understand each other's viewpoint. She has learned about their mechanical problems and they have learned about hers — such as getting carpet made for circular space.

She is currently working on the International Monetary Fund establishment in Washington D.C., but her design theories find their way into her free lance jobs for young people. For example, do they want to dine formally with silverware or do they prefer to eat dinner Japanese-style on the floor.

Winona Chapter 141, OES, installs officers

Mrs. Gordon Ballard and Merrill Peterson were installed as worthy matron and worthy patron of Winona Chapter 141, Order of Eastern Star, at an open installation ceremony Saturday at the Masonic Temple.

Mrs. Marion Ayres was installing officer, assisted by Mrs. Richard Hassett, Mrs. Tilden Moe, Charlotte Elkins, Miss Harriet Kelley, and Mrs. R. F. Stover. Soloists were Miss Lynn Deuchman, Rev. Glenn Quam and Merrill Peterson. Members of Jobs Daughters took part in the Bible ceremony, and the American and OES flags were presented by John Greeley and Miss Margaret Ferguson.

Other officers installed were Mrs. William Ferguson, associate matron; Chester Breitenfeldt, associate patron; Mrs. Carl Frank, secretary; Mrs.

Arthur Jackman, treasurer; Mrs. George Elliott, conductress; Mrs. Ervin Laufenburger, associate conductress; Robert Tremain, chaplain; Arnold Donath, marshal; Mrs. Robert Tremain, organist; Mrs. Roger Church, Adah; Mrs. Barbara Ozmun, Ruth; Mrs. Chester Breitenfeldt, Esther; Mrs. Beverly Engels, Martha; Miss Carlis Anderson, Electa; Mrs. Kenneth Junghans, warder, and Roger Church, sentinel.

Following installation, an informal reception was held.

Guests included members of Pickwick, Lewiston, Caledonia, St. Charles, Mankato, Rochester, Wabasha, Elgin, Chatfield, and Lake Crystal, Minn. chapters, and Galesville, Elroy, Trempealeau, Onalaska, La Crosse, Alma, and Cochrane, Wis. chapters.

Yes, a person does have right to die with dignity

DEAR ABBY: I hear they are trying to pass a law making it legal to let people die just by discontinuing treatment. They say it will be used so old people who are incurably sick won't have to linger and suffer after all hope for recovery is gone.

The thought of this is frightening. WHO will decide who is old enough and sick enough?

If you know anything about "euthanasia"—which in plain English means "mercy killing," please state your views.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR CONCERNED: "Euthanasia" literally means "the good death," and I am all for it. I believe it is cruel and senseless to prolong life by artificial means when there is no hope for recovery.

The right to die with dignity should be everybody's right. The Euthanasia Education Council (whose meetings I have personally attended) in New York, has made available "A Living Will." It reads as follows:

"To My Family, My Physician, My Clergyman, My Lawyer—If the time comes when I can no longer take part in decisions for my own future, let this statement stand as the testament of my wishes:

"If there is no reasonable expectation of my recovery from physical or mental or spiritual disability, I (name) request that I be allowed to die and not be kept alive by artificial means or heroic measures. Death is as much a reality as birth, growth, maturity, and old age — it is the one certainty. I do not fear death as much as I fear the indignity of deterioration, dependence, and hopeless pain. I ask that drugs be mercifully administered to me for terminal suffering even if they hasten the moment of death."

"This request is made while I am in good health and spirits. Although this document is not legally binding, you who care for me will, I hope, feel morally bound to follow its mandates. I recognize it places a heavy burden of responsibility upon you, and it is with the intention of sharing that responsibility and of mitigating any feelings of guilt that this statement is made."

Sign document in the presence of witnesses, and give it to your family physician, attorney, and/or a member of your family. (Better yet, obtain three copies, and give each one a copy, I did).

"A Living Will" document may be obtained by writing to:

THE EUTHANASIA COUNCIL

250 W. 75th St.

New York, N.Y. 10019

The document is free, but since this is a nonprofit organization, donations from $1 and up are gratefully accepted. One woman sent $500 saying: "This is the most marvelous thing I've ever heard of!" I agree.

DEAR ABBY: Cigarette smoke makes me sick. Yet if someone asks, "Do you mind if I smoke?" I find myself saying, "Not at all. Go ahead." Then I could kick myself. There must be a better way to handle this. NO GUTS

DEAR NO GUTS: There is. The next time someone asks, "Do you mind if I smoke?" reply: "Not if you don't mind if I choke!"

DEAR ABBY: Randy and I both attend the University of Oregon and plan to be married sometime this summer. Randy has been writing our marriage service and he has one part in there I am not so sure of. He wants me to say, "I (my name) promise to love, cherish, and live in Oregon with (his name) in sickness and in health, poverty and wealth, etc."

I love Oregon, too, Abby, and I'm afraid if he includes that in the marriage service, people will laugh, and I don't want anybody laughing during the marriage vows. Should we leave it in? ELSIE IN EUGENE

DEAR ELSIE: Tell Randy that living in Oregon is a privilege—not a duty, and to leave it out!

Weight control program planned at W-K School
Washington-Kosciusko School plans to add weight control to its health service program, according to school nurse Mrs. Mary Berglund.

Mrs. Berglund told the school's Parent Senate meeting Friday that she hopes health services can be expanded next year, with more time available for home visits. The weight program would include identifying children with extreme weight-gaining tendencies and helping curb obesity.

Her talk included a report on the nurse's aide, Mrs. William Wiech, who maintains records and administers to general health needs, including first aid.

Two perjury counts filed against former city resident

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — Two perjury counts against former Winona Phillip R. Birdsall have been made in a prostitution indictment by the Milwaukee Grand Jury.

Birdsall, 51, general manager of Nelson Tire Service, Inc., Madison, Wis., is accused of perjury for his denial that he had given a Milwaukee woman indicted as a prostitute checks covering other than refunds for overpayment on tires.

The indictment said he had paid money to Miss Rose Marie Curro, 35, in seven checks written on a Belleville, Wis., bank. Vice squad officers said the raid in which Miss Curro was arrested in February of 1972 was the result of investigating prostitution in Milwaukee's convention business.

Birdsall and attorney James Barrock, 40, Brookfield, Wis., were indicted for their testimony concerning Miss Curro.

Birdsall formerly worked at Nelson Tire Service's headquarters in Winona.

Golden State trims Bucks to even series

By MIKE O'BRIEN
MILWAUKEE (AP) — Rick Barry, sidelined by a first quarter ankle injury Sunday, went scoreless—precisely 22.3 points under his average.

Warrior '9' rained out again, at Iowa today

FAIRFIELD, Iowa — For the second day in a row Winona State had a scheduled double-header rained out there Sunday afternoon.

The Warriors, 2-2 for the young season, were slated to play Parsons College in a twin bill, but a steady drizzle left the field in unsatisfactory condition.

Coach Gary Grob was optimistic, however, about the chances of his team getting in two games with the University of Iowa today in Iowa City.

The Hawkeyes were ranked seventh in a recent poll for major colleges released by Collegiate Baseball magazine.

His record as an interim coach, however, is 1-0. Barry, placed in command of the Golden State Warriors when Coach Al Attles was banished with 6:55 to play, plotted the last minute strategy as the Warriors held off a Milwaukee Bucks rally for a 95-92 victory squaring their National Basketball Association playoffs at 1-1.

Milwaukee, down by 13 points early in the fourth quarter, charged back behind four straight baskets by Lucius Allen and closed to within 93-92 on Oscar Robertson's three-point play with 14 seconds to go.

But Barry, despite limited mobility, put himself back in the lineup to pass the ball inbounds at midcourt and told the veteran Mahdi Abdul-Rahman to dribble out the clock. Abdul-Rahman, fouled by Milwaukee rookie Russell Lee seven seconds later, sank two free throws for the game's final two points.

"This has got to get Milwaukee thinking, because they've been beating us pretty bad and now we've stopped that," Barry said. "But there's no way I want to coach. That's a good way to get an ulcer."

Barry twisted the ankle on a driving layup attempt less than three minutes into the game and didn't play again until the last 14 seconds.

But his replacement, Cazzie Russell, came through with 25 points. Jeff Mullins added 18, including 13 in the second half, and Nate Thurmond, despite an injured finger, scored 16 as the Warriors snapped the Bucks' 15-game winning streak.

Attles, who drew an automatic ejection when he picked up his second technical foul, said he expected Barry would play when the best of seven Western Conference semifinal series resumes in Oakland Thursday night.

"Naturally, it upsets you," Attles said of Barry's injury. "But we didn't have time to sit and brood about it. If one guy getting hurt takes you out of the game, we need some new people."

Barry, whose .902 free throw average this season led the NBA, said he replaced Clyde Lee with himself with 14 seconds left because he knew the Bucks had to foul to get the ball back.

"We wanted good free throw shooters in there," he said. "Mahdi is a good foul shooter, but we didn't want Nate to handle the ball. We just wanted to control the ball. We weren't going to shoot unless somebody was all alone under the bucket."

The Bucks' Jon McGlocklin missed a corner shot after Abdul-Rahman's free throws and Clyde Lee grabbed the last of his game-leading 17 rebounds, insuring Golden State's second victory in eight meetings with Milwaukee this season.

Sabres claim final berth for playoffs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Buffalo Sabres, who spent their first two seasons looking up from the bottom of the National Hockey League standings, are still looking up. But now they can only see three teams—and the view suits them just fine.

In their final game of the season, the Sabres locked up the fourth and final playoff spot with a 3-1 victory over the St. Louis Blues, edging Detroit 8-6 in total points. Detroit tied the Rangers 3-3.

In Sunday's other NHL action, the last day of the regular season, Montreal beat Boston 5-3, Pittsburgh trimmed Philadelphia 5-4, Chicago and Toronto skated to a 3-3 tie, and the Islanders tied the Flames 4-4.

On Saturday night, Montreal whipped the Rangers 5-1, Toronto stunned Boston 7-3, Philadelphia bullied the Islanders 10-2, Detroit dumped Chicago 4-2, Los Angeles beat Vancouver 6-3 and St. Louis blasted Pittsburgh 7-2.

In Saturday's WHA games, Cleveland downed Ottawa 4-2 while Philadelphia topped Chicago and Quebec defeated Houston by identical 5-1 scores.

Sunday, the final day in the WHA regular season, saw Houston outscoring Ottawa 6-3, New England clobbering Quebec 8-3, Cleveland beating Chicago 5-1 and Philadelphia getting by Winnipeg 4-2.

By beating out Detroit for fourth place in the NHL East, Buffalo has the dubious distinction of playing the powerful first-place Montreal Canadiens. But with champagne flowing in the triumphant Buffalo locker room the Sabres weren't looking across the border.

"I feel great," said Sabres' Coach Joe Crozier, a veteran minor league coach before he took over the reins from the ailing Punch Imlach in January, 1972. "A lot of people counted us out but we're there."

In New York, there were no celebrations in either locker room after Tim Ecclestone's goal with 3:15 remaining had given Detroit the tie.

The one point would have given the Red Wings fourth place had Buffalo lost. "What do you want me to say?" asked Detroit Coach Johnny Wilson. "We did what we could."

New York's non-playoff team, the Islanders, also ended their season with a tie, the only point they managed all season against their expansion sisters, the Atlanta Flames.

Fourth-period goals by Bob Nystrom, his first, and Billy Harris, his 28th, produced the tie. However, the point the Islanders picked up didn't prevent them from registering the lowest point total in NHL history—30 points. The 1953-54 Chicago Black Hawks held the old record of 31.

Montreal, which just missed the highest point total record by one, got a pair of goals from Pete Mahovich to defeat the second-place Boston Bruins.

Toronto closed out its season by tying Chicago on Norm Ullman's goal with 29 seconds left while the Pittsburgh players can go on their summer vacations with memories of a 5-4 victory over cross-state rival, Philadelphia. Jean Pronovost's goal with 1:13 remaining was the winner.

Saints to vie with Alberta for playoff spot

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Minnesota Fighting Saints, after apparently handing their chance for post-season action to Alberta, have been given an opportunity to battle the Oilers for the final berth in the World Hockey Association playoffs.

Minnesota lost its regular season finale 5-3 to Alberta in a contest that seemed to put the Oilers in and the Saints out of the fourth playoff spot in the WHA West Division.

But Minnesota protested a late-season rule change for breaking ties in the standings, and WHA President Gary L. Davidson announced late Sunday that the league trustees had decided in the Saints' favor.

Davidson said the Oilers and Saints would meet in a one-game showdown, to be played either Tuesday or Wednesday in either Calgary or Vancouver. A decision on time and place was to be made today.

"As we've done throughout the season, our decision was based on what we thought was the best for all involved," Davidson said. "It was more equitable to have a playoff game to determine fourth place."

Davidson had issued a directive March 21 changing the formula for breaking ties for playoff berths. The original rule called for a one game playoff.

The new directive said the tied teams' records against each other would be the determining factor. If that also resulted in a tie, their records against divisional teams would be compared.

The winner of the tie-breaking game will move into the first round of the WHA playoffs against West Division champion Winnipeg Friday in Winnipeg.

Havlicek sets Celtic record with 54 points

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The New York Knicks needed a little "magic" to beat the Baltimore Bullets and the Boston Celtics used a lot of muscle to handle the Atlanta Hawks.

Those were the ingredients of their National Basketball Association playoff victories Sunday as the Knicks and Celtics headed on a course toward the Eastern Conference title.

Led by Earl "Magic" Monroe's 32 points, the Knicks throttled the Bullets 123-103 to grab a 2-0 lead in their first round best-of-7 Eastern Conference playoffs.

In another Eastern match John Havlicek knocked out Atlanta with a 54-point performance to power a runaway 134-109 Celtic triumph for a 1-0 lead in their series.

In the NBA's Western Conference playoffs, the Golden State Warriors nipped the Milwaukee Bucks 95-92 to tie their set at 1-1 and the Los Angeles Lakers ripped the Chicago Bulls 108-93 for a 2-0 lead in theirs.

In the American Basketball Association Sunday, the Indiana Pacers trimmed the Denver Rockets 106-93 to take a 2-0 lead in their first-round West series and the Virginia Squires beat the Kentucky Colonels 109-94 to deadlock their Eastern series at 1-1.

The ABA playoffs continue tonight with the Utah Stars meeting the San Diego Con-quistadors in the first game of their Western Conference series. No games are scheduled in the NBA.

Monroe, who's also known by other nicknames such as "The Pearl," "The Count" and "Money," had an extraordinary game considering that he didn't sleep much the night before. "I was kind of nervous and edgy," said the Knicks' great one-on-one guard. "I don't usually play well in afternoon games. I spent a lot of sleepless moments thinking about the game."

It apparently didn't matter. He combined with backcourt mate Walt Frazier, who scored 29 points to help the Knicks break open the game with a devastating second half.

The Boston show was all Havlicek, whose point explosion was a team record. The Celtic star had 30 points in the first half and ran off strings of baskets anytime the Hawks threatened to make a game of it.

Guards Gail Goodrich and Jerry West combined for 63 points to power Los Angeles past Chicago.

Freddie Lewis scored 30 points, grabbed 11 rebounds and added three assists to lead Indiana's victory over Denver. He also was the defensive man responsible for containing Denver's high-scoring Warren Jabali, who only had 10 points.

With freshman Mike Aeling running a 2:09 880, freshman Dean Emanuel and junior Dave Walden following with a pair of fast 220 legs, and senior Bob Bestul finishing with a 440, Winona's time was 3:53.2.

The Winhawks' first outdoor meet will be April 11 when they host Caledonia and St. Charles in a triangular meet at Jefferson Field.

Pearson grabs checkered flag in Atlanta 500

By BLOYS DRIFF
AP Auto Racing Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — David Pearson and Cale Yarborough are graduates of sorts of the Wood Brothers school of stock car racing.

Yarborough completed his driving course cum laude in 1970 after winning nine super-speedway events for the famed c-r-building family from Stuart, Va.

Pearson, 39, last December and proud of the grey in his otherwise coal black hair, stepped to the head of the class after Yarborough's departure and now has tacked eight big ones to the Woods lengthening list of major triumphs.

The latest came Sunday at Atlanta International Raceway when Pearson outdueled alumnus Yarborough to win the $111,225 Atlanta 500 that drew a surprising 72,000 persons to wet and muddy grounds.

A driving, bumper-to-bumper finish appeared in prospect until Yarborough's Chevrolet wilted under the pressure and began overheating with 65 miles to go.

Pearson, who now has won his last two starts, led 157 of the 328 laps in posting an average speed of 139.391 miles per hour. Yarborough, who won three straight Atlanta 500s for the Wood Brothers beginning in 1968, paced the field 153 laps.

There were two other leaders. Richard Petty, stock car racing's only $1 million winner, though Pearson is creeping up on that mark, was in front only two occasions for 13 laps early in the race.

But the engine in Petty's Dodge exploded shortly before the halfway point, carrying him into the first turn wall. Buddy Baker rammed into Petty with his Dodge and suffered body damage that slowed him down the rest of the race.

Bobby Isaac, whose Ford was equipped with a 361-cubic inch engine, smallest in the field, was the leader for six laps but was no match for Pearson and Yarborough. He wound up second, two laps behind at the finish.

Third place went to Benny Parsons in a Chevrolet. Baker claimed fourth and Yarborough fifth.

Trip to Augusta delayed Casper, Graham tied for Greensboro lead

By BOB GREEN
GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Most of pro golf's leading lights aren't overly concerned about a one-day delay in getting to Augusta, Ga., for the start of the famed Masters Tournament on Thursday.

"I don't think it makes any difference at all," said Billy Casper. "You'll still be able to play a couple of practice rounds and that's all you need."

"I heard the course is closed at Augusta now anyhow, because of all the rain, so I can't see it makes any difference," Lou Graham said.

Graham and Casper shared the lead at 199, a whopping 14 under par, going into today's rain-delayed final round in the $210,000 Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament.

The Greensboro finish was pushed back one day by a series of rains that have deluged this area and turned the 7,021-yard, par-71 Sedgefield Country Club course into a quagmire.

Saturday's play was washed out by a 1 1/2-inch rain. A double round of 36 holes was scheduled Sunday but the course was unplayable—with much of it under water—for the morning round and only the afternoon half was played.

That forced a Monday windup and delayed most of the players' travel plans for Augusta by a day.

Chi Chi Rodriguez was alone in third after a 67 for 201. Doug Sanders, 69, and Rod Funseth, 68, followed at 202 with 60-year-old Sam Snead, Mike Hill and Canadian George Knudson grouped at 203.

Thomas Feely, veteran basketball and basketball head coach and athletic director of the College of St. Thomas, has resigned his baseball coaching assignment. He will remain in the capacity of general manager of the baseball operation at the college, handling administrative chores.

Feely said Saturday he resigned because the strain of coaching two varsity sports has become a burden. Also, he said that he wants to have more time to devote to the St. Thomas basketball program.

During his 12 years as baseball coach, Feely saw his teams win five Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference titles. His overall win-loss record for the period is 124-78.

Former St. Thomas baseball star, James McDonald, has been appointed interim head coach. McDonald, 28, was graduated from Creighton High School in 1962 and attended St. Thomas from 1962-64. He was signed to a professional baseball contract by the Houston Astros following his sophomore year.

McDonald will be graduated from St. Thomas this summer with a B.A. in physical education. He is now interning with Olson Junior High School in Bloomington, Minn., teaching seventh grade physical education.

Erdmanczyk cops racquetball title

Mike Erdmanczyk, a former center on Winona State's football team, is the new City Class B Racquetball Tournament champion.

Erdmanczyk disposed of Dan Blasko, who is a graduate of Winona High and not a senior at the school as was reported earlier, by scores of 21-13 and 21-18 in the tourney finals Thursday night at the Winona YMCA.

By virtue of winning the title, the 25-year-old Erdmanczyk will now be elevated to Class A status for future competition.

A City Open, Doubles and Masters Tournament is being planned for later this month.

In the consolation finals Thursday evening, Mitch Brink took two straight from Dr. Max DeBolt, 20-6 and 21-18.

Former St. Thomas baseball star, James McDonald, has been appointed interim head coach. McDonald, 28, was graduated from Cretin High School in 1982 and attended St. Thomas from 1962-64. He was signed to a professional baseball contract by the Houston Astros following his sophomore year.

Guys & Dolls keggers pace league scoring

Bowlers in the Guys & Dolls League at the Westgate Bowl Sunday made another clean sweep of individual scoring honors.

Keri Borzyskowski rolled a high game of 202 en route to a 584 count for the Borzyskowski-Ciarlo foursome, and her teammate, Tony Ciarlo, came in with scores of 236 and 638. The quartet also topped team scoring with totals of 845 and 2,375.

Gen Chuchna followed Mrs. Borzyskowski with a 532, and Peggy Jacobson wound up with a 503.

WESTGATE: Father & Son — Frank Diszak hit 213 and finished with a 258 for the progenies, Rod Sines carded a 216 en route to a 551 for the fathers, Sines & Schuppenhauer recorded 438-2,222, and Smith & Smith, with both father Al and son Matt rolling a 515, also wound up with 1,111.

Kings & Queens — Viola Overland and Mary Anne Nihart topped women with respective scores of 183 and 488. Milt Bigalk hit 237, Nord Overland came in with a 538 and Fred Nihart managed an errorless 530. Hart's took team honors with 801-2,299.

Westgate Boys — Todd Hervey tipped a 186, Don Boynton wound up with a 511, the Pinbusters combined for 768 and Moto Sports finished with 2,109.

Juniors — Jim Christensen had 159 and 299 for two games, Heavy Chevy worked for 610-1,178, and the Rookies also compiled 1,178.

Micheletti plans to attend U of M

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Joe Micheletti, star of the state champion Hibbing High School hockey team, has signed a letter of intent to attend the University of Minnesota.

Micheletti, who also plays football and baseball, scored seven goals in three tournament victories for the Blue Jackets.

Darwin returns to spark Twins

HOUSTON (AP) — Bob Darwin returned to the lineup and promptly belted two home runs and drove in all Minnesota's runs in a 3-2 exhibition victory over Houston Sunday.

Darwin knocked a ball over the right-field fence after Rod Carey tripled in the first inning, and he pulled a solo shot into the upper deck in left field in the sixth.

Bill Hands, acquired by the Twins from the Chicago Cubs during the winter, gave up seven hits and only one run during his seventh-inning stint.

The Twins now are 2-1 in exhibition play against the Astros. Their six-game series resumes today, with Minnesota's Joe Decker pitching for a job.

Darwin was back in right field after being hit in the face by a thrown ball during workouts Friday.

Several other injured Minnesota players remained on the bench. Harmon Killebrew, hit on the hand by a pitched ball, is available for pinch-hitting duty. George Mitterwald rested a muscle strain. Larry Hise will miss five days with a sprained ankle.

However, Hise is expected to be ready for Friday's season opener in Oakland.

Money collects five hits in Brewers' win

SUN CITY, Ariz. (AP) — Don Money made a controversial trade look good Sunday, while Jim Colborn probably clinched the opening day pitching assignment as the two led the Milwaukee Brewers to an 8-4 Cactus League victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Money, acquired in an off-season deal with Philadelphia, collected five hits—a triple and four singles—in as many times at bat and scored three runs. Joe Lahoud, continuing a fine spring, was the Brewers' other offensive leader with three hits and two runs batted in.

Colborn allowed his former Cub teammates six hits and one earned run in six innings. For the Cactus League season, the righthander has permitted only 16 hits, three walks and four earned runs in 21 innings.
